SHELLEY ROLFE

Class of '23 meets again

This is the way it was at the luncheon Thursday that celebrated the 60th anniversary of the graduation of the class of 1923 from John Marshall High School:

For heaven's sakes, 60 years! "You can figure how old everybody is," a man said. "Late 70s," he said with awe in his voice. Awe was a common commodity. Sixty years later, they were there. That was it. They were there. Most were awesomely spry. All were brimming with memories.

"They ought to make the name cards large enough to read," a man grumped good-naturedly.

"These people belong in 'Ripley's' " said Nancy Shaw, who lives in Rocky Mount, N.C. There were about 90 people on hand. Alumni and spouses. Mrs. Shaw is a spouse. Her husband, Leslie, is an alumnus. He is retired from the Graybar Electric Co. and went to Virginia Tech from John Marshall.

The Shaws were standing near the bar. Business was brisk. Bloody Marys were in demand. "Spiritual uplift," a man said. Some people were recalling the class' 50th reunion, which was held at the Hotel Jefferson.

"Boo," someone said to a tall woman. The nickname "Boo" was inscribed on Virginia Peaseley Harvey's name card. "Dr. Harvey," someone else said. She is a retired teacher of behavioral psychology at Kent State University in Ohio. She nodded grimly. She had been there the 1970 day that four anti-Vietnam War protesters were killed by the Ohio National Guard. She had traveled the longest distance to be at the reunion, 410 miles. "Boo, I haven't seen you in years," a man said. It was the first time she had been back for a John Marshall gathering.

"All the men here have to be retired," said a man who is retired. Well, not all of them. "I can't retire, I have my own business," said Floyd Adams. His firm provides engineering consulting services. Adams was one of the prime movers in the staging of the reunion and people kept telling him how wonderful it was.

Garland Shortt gave me a business card for his machine works. "My father started the business in 1909," Shortt said. "After graduation from John Marshall I went to work for my father for what I thought would be the summer job. I was planning to go to MIT." Shortt never got to MIT. The summer job became permanent.

I was introduced to Macon Sammons, who lives in Shawsville. Sammons is a traveling salesman who sells promotional advertising. A traveling salesman at his age? "I don't feel it," he said, disposing of the age question. There is a grand ensemble number from the musical "The Music Man" that delivers this message: "You have to know the territory."

"I know my territory," Sammons said. "It's fun."

Graduation ceremonies for the class of 1923 were held the night of June 13. "At the old City Auditorium on West Cary Street," said Louis Armstrong. "I had been working for Vepco and that night after graduation, I went back to my job." He is retired from Vepco. Gay Burrus Meisel recalled she had amassed enough credits to graduate in February and had gone to work for the Life Insurance Company of Virginia. In June, on graduation day, "they gave me the day off." She left her job in September to attend William and Mary.

The report of the graduation made the front page of The Times-Dispatch where it shared space with reports on the difficulties of enforcing Prohibition. Warren Harding was president. "Harding," said Joe Passamaneck, a retired pharmacist. "I marched in his inaugural parade. With the John Marshall Cadet Corps."

The graduating class of 347 was the largest in John Marshall history. In 1923, it was the city's only white high school. "We came from all four corners of the city to attend that grand school with its fine teachers," Mrs. Meisel said. She was studying a lovingly preserved 1923 year book. Most of the young women graduates had bobbed hair, which was considered rather daring at the time. Most of the young men wore serious looks. JM's principal, James C. Harwood, stared from a page. He was wearing a Victorian bat wing collar. "We called him Poppa Harwood," Mrs. Meisel said.

At the end of the luncheon, Floyd Adams said, "Should we have another meeting? I think we should." He was answered with applause.

1923 class reunion

John Marshall High School's class of 1923 will celebrate its 64th anniversary with a luncheon at 11:30 today at the Engineer's Club, 10 E. Franklin St. More information can be obtained by calling 288-0688.

Foreword

"Lest we forget" the charm and friendships of High School days, this volume is presented to you not merely as a book but as a memorial of the happy days spent at John Marshall. If, in years to come, these pages awaken in your memories the echo of the friendships, the good times, the hard work, the games, the frolics, and the high ideals that made up your four years at John Marshall, they shall be as keys to unlock the archives of memory, from whose chambered halls there shall come trooping forth those blessed scenes of The Long Ago.

Miss Mary Courtenay Shine

Dedication

As a tribute and an appreciation to one who has ever been to us a true teacher and loyal friend—rejoicing with us in our success, cheering us in our discouragement,
strengthening us in our weakness,
sympathizing in our failures, and whose unfailing help and gracious courtesy have won the confidence and love of the boys and girls of the John Marshall High School,

we

The Class of Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-three dedicate

This, the Thirteenth Volume of the Marshallite, to

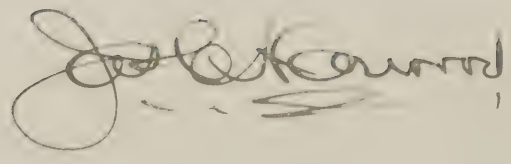
MISS MARY COURTENAY SHINE.

James C. Harwood, Principal



Our Smiling Jim

When first in fearsome awe we walked
  Up to the open portals
Of old John Marshall High School doors
  That yawn for youthful mortals;
Our thoughts flew back to other times,
To other scenes, to other climes,
  To ancient rhyme and story;
To witches, gnomes and uncouth shapes,
  And orgres dread and gory.

With trembling fear we faced the throne
Of this our modern ogre—
Only to find a kindly face,
A hearty welcome to the place
Made pleasant by his smiling.
Long may he reign, a friend indeed,
To every lad and lass in need;
Let's join in sending love to him,
Our long time friend, OUR SMILING JIM.

ALICE MCKAY.

A Tribute

This year marks the thirteenth issue of The Marshallite, the first number of which appeared in 1911, under the sponsorship of Miss Ray Van Vort. The following were the officers:

Editor-in-Chief ..... Gordon Gibson

Business Managers ..... Emanuel Wallerstein, Maurice Hutzler, Ray Dunning

With the passing of the present session our high school life ends, and the years spent together will slip into the yesterdays. We would pause here to express a tribute of appreciation to one whose affectionate interest, wise counsel, untiring energy, and unfailing sympathy have been demonstrated throughout The Marshallite's existence—

Miss Ray Van Vort

Graduation Day

Dear schoolmates, chums, and faculty,
  You have assembled here
To share with us these happy hours
  Of graduation cheer.
The time has all too quickly passed;
  Four years of work and play
Have brought us to our goal at last—
  Sweet graduation day.

May the laurels we have won today
  Kindle ambition's fire,
And all the efforts of these years
  High ideals inspire.
It gives us pain to say adieu
  To those we love so well;
And, as we part, the heartaches
  No scribe nor tongue can tell.

LOUISE STROTHER.

ARLINE PRESTON ADAMS

Eyes full of mischief,
Teeth like the pearl,
Heart brimming over with joy,
Make this dainty little girl.

From out of the little school in the west end (Binford) to the big metropolis of John Marshall she came. Demure little miss she, with heart and mind that will uphold the great dignity of her Alma Mater.

FLOYD ADAMS

Floyd is one of those boys whom everyone likes. He has often inspired us with courage and hope by his constant cheerfulness and smiles.

His hobby is the "flivver" which usually gets him here no sooner than 8:22 every morning. Possibly he will be an auto mechanic.

He will long be remembered by the class of '23. Here's good luck to you in your future career, Floyd.

Athletic Association. Sergeant, Cadet Corps.

HELEN IRENE ADKINS

Helen has indeed spread rays of sunshine through the famous old halls of J. M. H. S. We will not forget—nay, we cannot forget—her sprightly step, winning smile, charming personality, and unusual musical ability. We know that, even as she has conquered us, she will conquer whatever obstacles she may encounter in life.

Orchestra. Athletic Association.

RENA ANDREOTTI

Who doesn't know Rena, with her mass of black hair, twinkling brown eyes, and charming manner? If you don't know her, you'd better meet her before she leaves to make her career in the world, because you're missing a great deal. Although she has scores of friends, there's always room for more, and Rena's heart is large enough for them all, too.

Margaret Alexander

CECIL VIRGINIA ANDREWS

Cecil, of the brown eyes and curly, soft, brown hair,
Quiet and demure, with quite a studious air,
Will always be successful in whatever she may do,
For good, consistent effort will make all dreams come true.
And when success has crowned her, we'll hear amidst her praise,
"We always knew it would be so, in old John Marshall days."

BROADUS P. ADAMS

Although at first he seems quiet, Broadus is no more so than any other boy when you know him well. He has obtained the commission of color sergeant. We all know that you will be successful in whatever you attempt. John Marshall wishes you Godspeed and the best o' luck.

Athletic Association. Color Sergeant, Cadet Corps.

IRENE AMBORN

According to legend, the name Irene signifies peace. This is especially true in Miss Amborn's case, for she is sedate, dignified, and tranquil, with a gentle and winning smile. Irene has been a diligent student and a loyal supporter of our school. Here's to her future success and happiness.

Patriotic Club. Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

MARGARET ALEXANDER

Margaret, better known to her friends as "Dolly," is as good a friend as any one would want. Her face is o'erspread with a mass of freckles, but this does not mar her attractiveness. A true Marshallite, she is always ready to help one when she can. We extend our sincere wishes as she goes out into the world.

EVELYN ANCELL

"Ha-ha!" This is characteristic of Evelyn.

You've missed a real pleasure at John Marshall if you have never laughed with "Little Bits." When she leaves us, we lose one of the gayest Marshallites we have ever known.

Pep Club. Athletic Association.

WILLIAM HITER ATKINS

Hiter is a genuine Marshallite, and taking advantage of this fact we work him almost to death; but being a healthy specimen and a good sport, we know he will survive. As the president of our class he has endeared himself to us all, and in the years to come we shall always remember him as one whose heart was ours and of whose leadership we were proud.

President, Class '23. Second Lieutenant, Cadet Corps. Marshallite Staff. Circulation Manager, Record. Historian, Patriotic Club. Athletic Association. President, Debating Club. Debating team.

MARTHA APPERSON

"Brevity is the soul of wit." Who would have thought Polonius such an able prophet?

We would proudly put Martha up against the old philosopher. Unruffled, teasing to desperation whom she fancies to disturb, she struts her tiny self through her senior year, to find at the rainbow's end a pot of excellent grades with a host of good wishes to speed her on her way.

Vice-President, Girls' High School Club. Record Staff. Patriotic Club. Athletic Association.

ROSE ARENSTEIN

Have you ever met Rose, the curly haired imp? You've missed a delightful feature of J. M. if you haven't become acquainted with this young lady. She has the ability to accomplish much.

HERMAN ARMSTRONG

"I like him." It's what we always hear said when Herman Armstrong is mentioned. He is justly popular, and there's not one of us who is not glad to have known him. It is with regret that teachers and pupils bid him good-bye.

GERTRUDE BAKER

If you ever feel blue and want to hear a good joke, just come to Gertrude. She always has a brand new one on the tip of her tongue.

Gertrude has won many friends during her four years at J. M. H. S., and we all wish her success in all her endeavors.

LOUIS BRANNAN ARMSTRONG

This is the dignified (?) Senior who still puts tacks in his teacher's chair. Louis is a puzzle. We never know whether to expect a perfect lesson or an "I don't know" from him. If Louis wants anything he generally gets it. We wish him success in his future career.

Patriotic Club. Sergeant, Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

GRETCHEN BAILEY

"True to herself,
True to her friends,
True to her duty always."

True, indeed, has she been in all that she has undertaken. She is the kind of friend we would all like to be; the kind of girl we are glad to number among our friends. May success and happiness follow her always, especially at the college of her choice—Randolph-Macon.

Patriotic Club. Athletic Association.

CAROLYNE BANCROFT

A charming bud, reflecting the sunny South and the balmy atmosphere of Alabama, has blossomed in Virginia. This is Carrie, of the type for which the South is famous. When the day of parting comes, a ray of joy will leave John Marshall that will not be replaceable.

LUCILE BASS

When everything seems going wrong
And not a thing seems right,
Just try your best to do your best
And work with all your might.

That's Lucile's slogan, better known to us as "Lou." Her ever-ready smile and her pleasant ways have made for her many friends. May Dame Fortune ever be with you, "Lou."

KENDALL BACHE

"We have with us to-day" — Kenny! Without any exception, he is the smallest member of that illustrious body, the class of '23. He is a regular genius in all kinds of sports. Kenny is leaving us in June, and our best wishes go with him as a "Key-det" at V. P. I.

Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

MARY CATHERINE BELL

Meek as are the pansies
Crushed beneath the rain;
Silent as the snow flakes
On the window pane;
Modest as the primrose
Blushing at the sky;
Brilliant as the moonlight
When the moon is high.

Record Staff. Girls' High School Club. Patriotic Club. Athletic Association.

FRANK K. BATES

During his four years at John Marshall, Frank has risen rapidly in prominence until now everybody knows "Cake" Bates. He has gained the reputation of being quite a "heartbreaker," and frequently, as he passes by, you hear the girls heave a deep sigh and murmur, "Isn't he the best looking thing?" Bates is a fine sport, and we hate to lose him.

Athletic Association. Battalion Supply Sergeant, Cadet Corps. Assistant Manager, Basketball Team '23.

FRANCES BELT

Some folks possess both quality and quantity. This is true of Frances. She is that tall, athletic girl often seen strolling down the hall dressed in the latest style. She is a noted swimmer, and we know that if she swims through life with as much ease as she does in the river, her future is assured. J. M. hates to lose you, "Boots"!

Pep Club. Athletic Association.

WORTHAM BELL

Four years ago there stumbled into the halls of John Marshall—"Skinny"! He's been making a record for himself in various ways ever since, but especially is he famous for piling up our basketball scores. We'll always remember him, too, as being the composer of that well known song, "Mary Had a Little Class of 1923." "Skinny," you're leaving us with our sincerest wishes for a brilliant career.

Basketball Team '21-22; '22-23. Baseball Team '22. Athletic Association. Monogram Club.

MABEL BENTON

Here it comes! Whizz! There it goes!
What?
Oh, that's just Mabel in her speeding
Hup.
She may have been quiet at old J. M.,
But out at Glen Allen—ahem!
She's got the spirit, the dash and pep;
In church work, also, she's made a fine
"rep."
Congratulations to Mabel from the old home town;
Forward in the world to fame and renown!

MORRIS BERLIANT

While not the most popular Senior and at best a small part of the class, yet all the same Morris is one of us, and we are glad of it. With whole-hearted sincerity we wish him the best o' luck always.

BERTHA BETHEL

A lass with dark eyes—brown eyes that twinkle merrily upon occasion—is Bertha. She wears a ready smile and has a cheery word for everyone. Her forte is helping others in any way she can. This special characteristic has won her many friends who wish her the very best life has to offer.

DONALD BENTLEY

Nothing much is known about this cynical cadet except the fact that he is an I. D. R. "shark" and hates flappers. Almost everyone has heard of his phenomenal knowledge of drill, and nearly everyone who knows him has at some time asked his version of some military movement.

Corporal, Cadet Corps.
Athletic Association.

MARY LUCILLE BIBB

Always ready to lend a helping hand—that is the most characteristic thing about Mary. She is an enthusiastic Marshallite, a sympathetic friend, and a good pupil. Here's to her success in the future!

MARGUERITE BICKERS

Yes, Marguerite is leaving us. Although she hasn't yet decided on her career, it is rumored that she will specialize in Latin. Marguerite is one of those happy, care-free girls, bubbling over with fun and good humor. Her winning ways have gained for her a host of friends in old John Marshall.

Patriotic Club. Athletic Association.

WILLIAM C. BENTLEY

There are many good reasons for Bill's popularity. His success as an athlete and his fame as a musician, together with his perpetual good humor, make up a personality which has won the friendship and admiration of the whole school. And when before the cheery fireside, one recalls old friends and old memories, big "Ox," with his bigger heart, will be among the foremost.

Football Team '21; '22. Patriotic Club. Athletic Association. Business Staff, Marshallite. Sergeant, Cadet Corps. Monogram Club.

NELLIE BINFORD

If I were to describe Nellie, no one else would be able to use the dictionary in the library for the rest of the term, nor would there be room for anything else in the Marshallite. Count yourself unlucky if you haven't been in a French class with her.

Good luck and best wishes, cherie.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

MINNIE LEE BLANKENSHIP

Just being happy is a fine thing to do,
Looking on the bright side rather than the blue.

This is Minnie Lee. We hope that when she becomes somebody's stenographer, she will meet with the best of luck.

B. GARY BLAKE

This specimen of humanity is as full of deviltry as a porcupine is of quills. Next to getting himself and some one else into mischief, he likes a joke. In spite of all this, he is a good student, while his habitual good nature makes him liked by all who know him.

Athletic Association.

EDYTHE WHITE BOWE

Edythe is one of the stars on the horizon of the Senior Class. She shines in everything—even physics! Her one passion is her dog; her one fault, the deliberate way in which she puts on her hat!

And folks, she's the best kind of a sport—always willing to try anything once—even speeding when there's a "cop" behind.

"Edy," may you always succeed in bluffing misfortune as easily as you bluffed that cop.

Patriotic Club. Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

JOHN CLARKE BOOTH

There is a boy in school who resembles a certain deceased English king in features and military bearing—"Mike," alias King Rufus.

"Mike's" good humor has gained for him many friends, who will miss him greatly when he leaves for V. M. I.

IDA BOYD

"Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

This is Ida, for she is always ready to lend a helping hand to any one. A true pal, a good student, and a faithful friend all characterize Ida. Her ready smile and pleasing personality have won her many friends at John Marshall.

Athletic Association.

GEORGE EDWARDS BOWIS

"The best of goods comes in small packages."

Hail the little man with the big voice. When it comes to speaking, George is a "shark."

By his smiles, jokes, and kind words for everyone, he has made many friendships, which will continue with him in future life.

Here's to you, George, for the greatest success.

MILDRED BRELING

This young miss is probably unknown to some of you, but her friends find that she is sweet and attractive. The English teachers all breathe a sigh of relief when they have her in their class; but don't forget, Mildred, that we are backing you, too.

Girls' High School Club. Patriotic Club.

DANIEL E. BOOZ

Who does not know "Dan" and his musical talent? The two are so closely related that where there's one you'll find the other. He is a good scholar as well. You just ought to see him in physics class.

Here's wishing you the best of success after leaving John Marshall, for we all know he will merit it.

CHARLES HENLEY WRIGHT

Charles is often seen but seldom heard. He stands high in his studies and high in the minds of his fellow-classmates. His willingness to do for others has won him many friends in John Marshall. We sincerely hope that his future may be crowned with great success.

Athletic Association. Corporal, Cadet Corps.

LUCILE BRIDGEWATER

L is for lassie with tresses of brown;
U means unique, for which she's renowned.
C stands for charm; with its magic and power
She captures a host of admirers each hour.
I means industrious; well, that's understood;
She's just as industrious as she is good.
L is for laughter, whose peals you can hear;
If ever this lassie you chance to be near.
E for her eyes that sparkle with glee;
May you always be happy
L-U-C-I-L-E.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

MAXWELL BROKENBROUGH

She's the girl whom, once having seen, you'll want to know, and having known, you'll thank the gods for the privilege. Maxwell has proved herself to be the very best of pals.

A nicer girl you'll hardly find,
For one meets seldom just her kind.
She's lovely and she's mighty sweet;
Even to meet her is a treat!

Girls' High School Club.

GRACE VIRGINIA BRIEL

Grace's sense of humor and sunny disposition attract everyone who meets her. The first impression of Grace is that one is going to like her, and he is not mistaken. Here's wishing her the best of luck and happiness.

Athletic Association.

EDITH BRITTLE

About four years ago a kindly wind blew us a decidedly small package marked "Lefty." It was discovered to contain an unlimited amount of pep, smiles, wit, and sympathetic grins. Almost any time around the fifth period you're apt to hear, in very tragic tones, "Oh, I'm nearly starved!" Well, that's our "package."

Patriotic Club. Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

VIRGINIA RISQUE BRITTON

Madame Glyn, take care, you have a dangerous rival in the art of scenario writing. Virginia's brain turns out all sorts of heroes, heroines, and amazing plots. But she isn't entirely literary, for she makes "scrumptious" fudge and oh! yes, eyes, too.

Marshallite Staff. Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

RUTH KENNON YEAMANS

When you hear anyone speak of Ruth, you immediately think of her as that tall Senior who is always nice to everybody. If you want anything done and done well, go to Ruth, because she seems to be accomplished in every way. Briefly, she is just her sweet, unassuming self and a girl whom the Senior class could not do without.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

EMILY BROWN

Blonde hair, bewitching blue eyes, a smile that brings dimples—that's Emily. Once you make a friend of Emily she's always your friend. And she can dance, too—"nuf sed."

WILLIAM M. BROSKE

"Bill" hails from Highland Park, the land of mud and car wrecks. Perhaps this accounts for his love of a good joke, but we see no reason why it should cause him to be fond of math. He is indifferent to dancing, nor will he compliment one's handiwork other than by, "It'll pass." As a cadet he is much sought after, and as a tennis player he excels.

Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

CLARENCE BROWN

When our school has become merely a memory, we will hardly remember each pupil, but anyone of us who has occasion to come in contact with Clarence will always remember him as a friend, indeed, who was always willing to help in any undertaking, no matter how difficult.

Clarence first came to us an unknown, quiet little boy in short trousers. After four years he goes, leaving friends innumerable—and really—"he's a nice looking little chap."

ALICE BURNETT

In the last four years certain Marshallites have found a true friend. Everyone who knows Alice associates her name with frankness, probably because she says just what she thinks. She will always hold a place in our memory. We sincerely hope she will make as many friends in the future as she has at John Marshall.

JAMES (JIMMIE) BROWN

We have watched the steady progress of "Jimmie" through school, and are satisfied that he has the makings of a great personage. He will win his diploma not by any startling show of brilliancy but by honest and unceasing labor.

Now that he is about to leave us, we take this opportunity to wish him good luck in his chosen vocation.

Corporal, Cadet Corps.

EDITH BURRUSS

Golden curls, baby blue eyes, and a rosy smile—that's "Boo." But she is better known by her effervescent good humor and irresistible giggle. She may be seen at any time of the day dashing madly about, going—nobody knows where. Her wide range of acquaintances shows how readily she has made friends.

Girls' High School Club.
Athletic Association.

GAY BURRUSS

Prophets are usually thought of as being hoary with age, and so, perhaps, you will take Gay as a joke.

O Sage, will our future be rosy? Blow thrice upon the magic broth, and let us see our lot. Remember us, "Gay" prophet.

Marshallite Staff. Athletic Association. Prophet, Class '23.

HARRY G. BUTLER

You can take the boy out of the country, but you can't take the country out of the boy! It is rumored that Harry is to enter the University of Richmond next fall—not to take the campus course, but to attend the T. C. Williams School of Law. We believe he will ride safely through, and without the aid of his well-trained "pony."

RUBY BURRUSS

Ever seen a petite, bobbed-haired, hazel-eyed sprite tripping through the renowned halls of old John Marshall? Well, that's Ruby, and she's correctly named, for she's a little gem. By her winning ways, captivating smile, and genuine worth she has charmed everyone. Knowing Ruby, we are assured of her success as she leaves us to take her place in the world.

NEWELL BUTLER

"Newtsie" needs no introduction to those who walk through these classic halls. If you should ask some girl who that big brown-eyed boy is, their hearts would go "pit-a-pat"! "Newtsie" is a good student, and it can truly be said that he is liked by everyone. We will miss you, "Newtsie," when you leave J. M., for none but yourself can be your parallel.

Treasurer, Class '23. Record Staff. Patriotic Club. Athletic Association. Sergeant, Cadet Corps.

LILLIE BUTLER

Lillie is just a sweet little girl, full of pep.

She doesn't like to read and always has a hard time trying to obey the English teacher's order.

She is a little hustler and will be missed by many when she goes.

EVA BUTTS

"Smile and the world smiles with you."

This must be Eva's motto, for her dancing eyes and fantastic toes have carried her successfully through her High School days. Her smiles have relieved many of the monotonous duties of each day.

Years may come.
And years may go;
But may Eva's smiles go on forever.

VIRGINIA BEVERLEY CALDWELL

Bev. is one of those good natured people who can make a joke out of anything—even Latin. Studying is not her favorite hobby, but she has made her way safely through John Marshall in four years. Here's to Bev., full of fun and pep, a true friend, and a true Marshallite!

Athletic Association. Chairman. Program Committee, Girls' High School Club.

MANFRED CALL

Hello! Long Distance—"Call," please—no not San Francisco, but Manfred, that long, lanky creature so often seen about the halls of old J. M.

Manfred is quiet (?), energetic, and a good student, especially in chemistry and physics—subjects closely related to the career of medicine which he expects to follow.

May Science's Hall of Fame claim you, Manfred.

Sergeant, Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

INEZ CARR

Our fashion authority saves us from many a trip abroad—for which we are very grateful. For her other qualities inquire of certain cadets who are better informed than Ye Scribe.

We won't forget you, Inez.

Athletic Association.

ROBERT BENJAMIN CHEATHAM

The tortoise who beat the hare has nothing on "Ben." This belief becomes more and more evident as "he plods his weary way" through the upper grades of Latin.

"Ben's" popularity and personality make him the center of attraction wherever he goes, and his ready smile exemplifies,

"Smile and the world smiles with you."

Athletic Association. Patriotic Club. John Marshall Debating Club.

GLADYS MAE DONNELLY

Small, sweet, and good-natured—that is Gladys. Some of us know her well, and many of us would like to know her better. She has worked faithfully for her diploma and has won the love of her teachers as well as her classmates. May she retain the same good nature and make as many friends after she leaves us as she has at her Alma Mater.

MARY CHENERY

Mary is a bobbed-haired, rosy-cheeked blonde, but in spite of this incriminating evidence, she is not a flapper, for she has brains and uses them for practical purposes, such as getting the most out of school life with the least amount of work. No—she's not lazy, for she plays the violin well, which art an indolent person would never acquire.

EVELYN BYRD CHILDREY

Evelyn is that sweet, quiet little girl that accomplishes so much. No matter what she undertakes, she succeeds in it; and in vain would we seek for something that she can not do. Her friends are too numerous to count; they are everywhere.

Surely good Dame Fortune will not only smile upon her but will accompany her always through her entire life.

Patriotic Club. Girls' High School Club.

JOHN NORWOOD CLARY

The "diminutive Cake" with the broad smile and pleasing personality—that's Norwood! But that's not all, for Miss Shine insists that he has a truly mathematical mind. You don't have to make friends with Norwood, either. He's just naturally a friend to everybody, and we're expecting to hear great things of him when he leaves us in June.

MYRTLE CLEMENTS

This small package of good humor came to us four years ago as a "rat." During these four years she has won the good-will of the faculty and students. Myrtle, as you now launch upon the sea of life, may your voyage be one of success and happiness.

CALVIN COGHILL

If "Piggy" could but master his lessons as he does feminine hearts, he would be a genius! Although his head is never bowed in perpetual study, he always manages to "get by." Here's luck to you, Calvin! May the Fates be kind.

Athletic Association. First Lieutenant, Cadet Corps.

MARCELLA CLARK

Marcella Clark—that spells everything
How many are there
Who are half so sweet?
Well disposed and attractive,
She is pretty and neat.
Well versed in terpsichore,
She "handles" her feet.
Whatever she tries, she does it well,
And is always there at the stroke of the bell.
May health and prosperity light her ways,
And happiness follow her all her days.

Athletic Association. Girls' High School Club.

REDA COHEN

Lonesome, blue, or anything? Just call Reda! You've missed a great deal if you don't know this little bunch of fun and "pep." She's a good sport, a good student, and best of all, a good pal.

Everyone loves this little brunette, and we all wish her success and happiness.

NICHOLAS T. COOKE

Behold the master of studies at John Marshall! "Nick" has made an enviable record while here, and we hope he will make a doubly successful one in future life.

He says he has made no impression on any member of the fair sex, but he will have to prove it!

HELEN KATHLEEN COLLY

"Her care is never to offend,
And every creature is her friend."

Kathleen, thoughtful and unselfish, came to us in her Senior year. Readiness to help those in need, tact, originality, and charm are the qualities that have endeared her to her classmates. We predict for her a future both useful and prosperous.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

MINNIE COOK

Whence comes all that joyous laughter and merry chatter which we hear so many times a day in the halls of old J. M.? Behold! it is Minnie. Everyone knows Minnie by her charming personality and her musical ability. Her sunny disposition has won her a host of friends, and at the same time made her a breaker of masculine hearts. Good luck, Minnie, and success in whatever you may do.

GRAYSON COSBY

Who is it that hasn't heard of this second George Washington? He has a great ability for breaking hearts and doesn't miss being a lady's man. We hate to see "Hunker" leave us, but we wish him all success wherever he may go.

Scrgeant, Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

MARIAH ELIZABETH COTTRELL

However, we call her Betty, and she is all that the name implies—brown hair, brown eyes, and a sunny genuine nature. Those who have studied Latin with her have perhaps realized that her slowness is aggravating, but that her knowledge acquired by persistency is quite to be praised. Mathematics is Betty's specialty, but we are certain that her wholesome personality will make her succeed in anything she may attempt.

Girls' High School Club. Patriotic Club. Athletic Association.

HELEN COWHERD

Helen is that dear little Senior with light hair and blue eyes. She is rather quiet, but she is the kind of girl you feel confident you can trust. Her stay at John Marshall has been brief as she came to us only two years ago from Gordonsville, but their loss has been our gain.

Athletic Association. Girls' High School Club.

SADA COWGILL

Three years ago Sada came to us from Buckingham to cast her lot with the class of 1923. She is the "modest violet" type of girl, pure of heart, gentle and refined of manner. By her loyalty and ambition and faithfulness to duty she has early shown a high seriousness of purpose that promises much. She has special aptitude for social work.

ARTHUR HUME COX

"Not too sad, not too gay,
But a real good sport in every way."

Although Hume is a Virginian, he is always ready to argue for his favorite New England, and he surely can give a good argument.

Dame Fortune will be sure to follow such a reserved and studious youth. At any rate, we hope it will be she, rather than her daughter, "Miss Fortune."

VIRGINIA SPOTTSWOOD COWHERD

"Pat"—A Drama in Three Acts.

ACT I—"Pat," a slender girl with light hair, blue eyes, and rosy cheeks, is elected President of the Junior Class.

ACT II—As a result of her efforts, her enthusiasm, and her lovable personality, she is chosen Vice-President of the Senior Class.

ACT III—Through a mist she is seen, a graduate, setting out for life amidst a host of friends. One cavalier is on his knees before her. The outcome rests with the imagination.

Vice-President, Senior Class. Third Vice-President, Patriotic Club. Associate Editor of Marshallite. Treasurer, Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association. Class Vice-President, '21. Class President, '22.

ELIZABETH CRENSHAW

John Marshall will seem very dull without Elizabeth's presence. Although "Liz" is quiet, she has achieved a host of friends and accomplished many things. We do not doubt her ability to become a great musician, and hope that one of these days she will put to music her favorite words, "Have you seen——?"

Athletic Association.

WILLIAM CRANE

In the classroom it's soft and low; in the corridors—well, it's just the reverse. I wonder why; but Bill is the only one that holds that secret. "To get by" the teachers? Well, I'll take that back, because even if it is true, you pass anyway, eh, "Bill?" The same success through college is our wish for you.

MAE CRUMPTON

In losing Mae, John Marshall is indeed unfortunate. One can hardly imagine High School without her dark eyes and charming countenance. Not only will the boys miss her, but the girls will miss the best of chums, and the teachers, an adept pupil. May you find as big a place in the world as you have in the hearts of your schoolmates.

IDA ELLEN CROWDER

When Ida promises to do a thing, one may rest assured that it will be done. At her studies, too, she is never found with an unprepared lesson. As a friend she is dependable and true. She may be small, but when she leaves there will be a great big empty spot in our hearts.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

GLADYS DAVIS

Beware! When Gladys meditates, mischief is brewing. She always has a smile and joke for everyone. What would we have done without her in those dark, dreary days when we were mere "Rats"? She 's a good fellow if ever there was one.

EDWIN DAVID

Have you ever watched Edwin in Math class? If you have, you will agree that he is "mathematically inclined," for he is all interest, questions, and answers.

Edwin is always cheerful and smiling. We hope that your future will be a "smiling" one, Edwin.

HELEN DAVIS

Helen is the baby of the Senior Class. Though small in size, she's big in worth. By her sweet, winning ways she has captured the hearts of all the students who know her. Helen, may your joys be many and your sorrows few.

FLORENCE DAVIDSON

Those of you who know Florence are lucky; those who never had the pleasure are unforunate; and those who are going to meet her have something to which to look forward. She is just the kind of girl that everyone likes—lively, full of fun, and a good sport.

JOHN A. DAVIS

John Davis, the "Sheik" of Morris Street, is doubtless well-known around John Marshall. His hobbies are radio, tennis, and swimming. By virtue, or in spite of these, he may some day become the President of the United States. Good luck and all that sort of thing, Johnny!

NELLIE COLEMAN DAVISON

Nellie is small in stature, but big in heart. She is distinguished for her unfailing good humor, love of fun, conscientious work as a student, and a ready smile for every day of the week, plus an extra one for Sunday.

We feel that when she takes her place in the field of art, her success is assured if her personality but enter into the products of her brush.

CHARLES DIETRICH

Like all the wise, Charles seldom speaks, especially in the presence of the fair sex, although we hear he is very fond of the ladies. His latest hobby is radio, which takes up most of his time. We hope in the future the same discretion which guards his speech will lead him to success.

Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

EDITH DeWITT

Edith is a loyal friend, a dependable, sympathetic girl. She's a living example of "a friend in need."

We believe that as a nurse she will be of real value to the medical world.

ISABEL CLAYTON DICKERSON

Someone has called Isabel the prettiest girl in the Senior Class. Her black eyes certainly justify the statement. She is a lover of mathematics, and the affection is returned, judging from her report cards. We send her forth warm-hearted, impulsive, fun-loving, and loyal, and we are certain the world will appreciate what she will accomplish.

Girls' High School Club. Patriotic Club. Athletic Association.

ROBERT F. DOUGLAS

Robert is popular with the fair sex and hail-fellow-well-met with the boys. To be more explicit, he's an all-around good sport, and we wish him the best of luck.

Patriotic Club. Athletic Association.

ELISE DRAKE

Alas! the word "Adieu" we hear,
Which means you're departing from us.
We're sorry, "Mike," to see you go,
But well we know you must.

You will be missed by those you leave and welcomed by those you meet. Here's wishing you the best o' luck in everything you undertake.

Mike, "ole" dear, J. M. expects a real success from you!

ALFRED K. DUDLEY
"Dickie"

'Twas surely a favorable wind that blew "Dickie" our way, for all of us have known and been proud of him since the time when he first emerged from his "rathood." He made his debut in "Bulbul," and he's been steadily rising in prominence ever since. Known to the faculty as a diligent (?) student, to athletes as a wonderful football player, and to his friends as a regular pal—such a fellow is "Dickie."

MARY ANN DRINARD

Mary is noted for her wit and good disposition. Never but once have we seen her in a bad humor. Don't get excited, Mary Ann, we won't tell on you! With a fair amount of study and a great deal of fun "Dynamite" has blasted her way through John Marshall. May her future life be as successful as her past.

Athletic Association.

A. WILLARD DUKE

Here's a boy with a happy face,
A well-built fellow of manly grace,
A sunny smile and a friendly air,
Dark brown eyes and a shock of hair.
In all his classes he stands just fine,
But Math is where he can simply shine.
He also has a great host of friends,
Who will miss him when the session ends.

Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

PAGE DRINKER

Page is the best pal a fellow ever had. She's the truest of the true, and will always help you when you're in trouble, especially if Spanish is the trouble. Her friends are innumerable; they are everywhere. We have good reasons to believe, Page, that William and Mary will get an excellent student and a good sport when you enter its famous halls.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

ELEANOR EARLE

"Laugh and the world laughs with you."

Dear old Eleanor! What a pal she has been to us all! Always cheerful, witty and optimistic, she has cast a ray of sunshine over J. M. H. S. since she entered as a "rat."

Here's to you, Eleanor, for happiness, success, and good fortune.

Athletic Association.

CHARLES THOMAS EUBANK

Look at this picture twice, as sometime in the future it will surely be seen beside those of Edison and Marconi.

Charles' hobby is the electrical line. We could easily predict 100% efficiency motors and perpetual motion machines if he but puts as much energy and spirit in his work as he has shown during his stay with us. Best wishes for the future, Charlie.

Athletic Association.

ANN ELLIOTT

Oh! those flashing brown eyes and winning dimples have caused many to lose their hearts. Ann is our confidante and adviser. Her ever-ready smiles and jovous nature have won for her many friends at John Marshall who value her friendship more than silver and gold—yea, much fine gold. If you don't know her, you would do well to cultivate her acquaintance.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

BRANCH D. ELAM

Allow us to present Branch, one of the finest, cheeriest, and most popular fellows in the class. It is said that it takes all kinds of people to make the world, and it is the kind like Branch that makes the best part of it. Not only does his outward appearance please, but he is a hard worker, a successful student, and a real man. He is also ambitious. If you don't believe it. ask the girls.

Football Squad '22. Track Team '22. Athletic Association.

GERALDINE ELLIS

Geraldine has a bright, sunny disposition, which endears her to all who know her. When you become acquainted with this dignified (?) maiden, you realize that her smile is the genuine kind.

She is one of those peculiar specimens who love to burn the midnight oil.

EDGAR EUBANK

"Quiet but sound to the core" is our verdict of Edgar. If we had waited for him to speak up, he probably would have escaped altogether from this book without being properly dissected and classified with the other victims of the editorial pen. Many and varied are his talents, any one of which will insure a success behind the curtain of tomorrow.

ARLETTA ESTIS

"Just being happy is a fine thing to do—
Looking on the bright side rather than the blue."

Besides being an excellent student, Arletta has been a good pal to her classmates. By her own cheerful, happy disposition she has made those around her happy too.

You've been a good Marshallite, Arletta, and we hope that your happiness may continue.

Athletic Association. Girls' High School Club.

SALLIE HILL FERGUSON

Roanoke must be a "peppy" place,
And reason good have I to say,
'Cause look what just blew in to us
From up that-a-way—
Something small and very snappy
With a smile that's always game.
When she goes we'll be unhappy,
'Cause the school won't be the same.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

ERNEST C. FISHER, Jr.

Behold, the so-called perfect "Cake Eater"!—but he is not the brainless, useless, lazy insect the word implies. Although Ernest may wear peculiarly shaped hats, flashy ties, and purple socks, we who really know him shall never believe that he is anything but the best kind of a sport.

T. N. T. Public Speaking Club. Marshallite Staff—Circulation Manager Patriotic Club. Athletic Association. Debating Club.

BEVERLY FLEMING

Beverly is, curiously, at once sophisticated and ingenuous—a combination which we do not understand, but have found during the last three years eminently attractive. He has, too, a capacity and ambition for advancement, which at High School has raised him above the average level and will, we are confident, lead him to future success.

MINNIE KING FLOURNOY

In Minnie there are two combatting elements—what she makes, and what makes her. What she makes are refreshments for all the parties of the class of '23. What makes her are bright eyes, a jubilant spirit, and a galloping tongue. Because of the widespread knowledge of her merits and her deserved popularity, there is not the least danger in this case of "biting the hand that feeds you."

Girls' High School Club. Patriotic Club. Athletic Association.

BERNARD (BUNNIE) T. FRANCK

Have you seen a certain sturdy and athletic looking little sergeant strutting about John Marshall? This distinguished looking fellow is Bunnie. Strange to say, he seems to care very little about the fair sex, but rumor says that he is a heartbreaker.

Do not be surprised if some day you see in the paper that Dr. Franck has found a cure for cancer, leprosy, and a number of other diseases before declared incurable.

Cadet Corps. Patriotic Club.

MARIAN FLOYD

Marian's first impulse is to find fun. If she can't find it, she starts something, and the first thing you know everyone is laughing. Latin is the only thing that annoys her, and yet she can translate. She loves French with a deadly passion, and her "parlez-vousing" is distinctly original. Best of luck when you go to France!

Athletic Association.

MARY FOLKES

"Oh! what a pal was Mary!"

Everyone who has been fortunate enough to meet Mary knows that this quotation is true. Sad indeed will be her many friends when she leaves John Marshall. Mary is a very jolly girl, and you can always count on her when it comes to "rooting" at the games. Nevertheless, she is always ready to take lessons seriously.

High School Club. Athletic Association.

VIRGINIA FONES

Virginia is a very pleasant, agreeable girl, with a sweet and gentle smile which has won her many friends during her sojurn at J. M. When she leaves, we all shall miss her, for what is best is missed most.

ISADORE FRATKIN

Isadore has finally completed John Marshall after a hard and long struggle. He has made many friends and few, if any, enemies. We wish him the best of luck in anything he undertakes after leaving John Marshall.

Athletic Association.

ELLEN FORD

Some win by beauty, and some by grace,
And some by their brains, so they say!
But Ellen's art
To win every heart
Is her winningest, winsomest way.

Athletic Association. Patriotic Club.

EUGENE ELWOOD FORD

Elwood is young, but he has great ambitions. He is one of those quiet, deep-thinking fellows whom everyone admires. He is very saving of his speech; in fact, he seems afraid of saying too much.

We wish him the best of luck, and feel sure that if he continues to work as hard in the future as he has in the past, his success is assured.

THELMA FORD

Have you ever met Thelma, better known to her friends as "Dilly?" She is a good sport and an all-around good pal. By her winning smile and pleasing personality, she has made many friends at J. M. We all join in wishing her the best of luck.

JULIAN FORD

Julian has proved the truth of the Latin quotation, "Labor omnia vincit." Like that illustrious man who departed "leaving foot-prints on the sands of time" will Julian depart from the halls of John Marshall, leaving his imprint on the hearts of his fellow classmates.

Record Staff. Corporal, Cadet Corps. Patriotic Club. Athletic Association.

RUTH FORD

Only those who know Ruth well realize what an attractive girl she is—broad-minded, independent, ambitious and with high ideals.

With these admirable characteristics there is no reason why she should not have a happy and successful future.

MARGARET FRANCIS

Not so long ago there came to us from far off Massachusetts a little maid by the name of Margaret. Plainsfield was as loath to lose her as we were glad to receive her. Her friends at John Marshall wish her the best of luck as she commences life's journey.

Athletic Association.

STANLEY FORD

Stanley is acknowledged by every one to be one of the best students in J. M. H. S. By diligent work he has always led his classes, and by his good humor he has won his way into the hearts of his fellow students. We wish him luck wherever he goes!

Athletic Association. Cadet Corps.

REBEKAH LUCILE FRANKLIN

Some girls leave to their Alma Mater sweet and beautiful memories, and this can be truthfully said of 'Cile. She's about the dearest pal anyone could want, and she's bubbling over with true Marshallite spirit, too. When you see a red head bobbing vigorously, you can always tell that 'Cile has started talking, an art of which she is a master, and we'll miss that delightful chatter when she's gone.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association. Patriotic Society.

ALBERT FOSTER

"Buy a ticket to the game!"

These words are especially characteristic of Albert. Surely everyone in John Marshall knows the boy who always wishes to sell us a ticket to some sort of a game. You never see him angry; he has an exceptionally good disposition. He makes friends easily, particularly among the girls whom he furnishes with gum.

Good luck to you, Albert!

Athletic Association.

RUBY FREEMAN

Here's Ruby—cheerfulness personified. Who ever sees her without a smile? Besides being an optimistic companion, she is a good sport and full of pep. Although Ruby is small, she likes tall people.

As a proof of her popularity you should see her at a dance. All you can hear is, "May I have this break?"

We wish you much success, Ruby.

HARRY FREEMAN

Harry has hidden depths which only those who are intimately associated with him can fully appreciate. He is quiet, 'tis true, but the old adage holds true in this case: "Still waters run deep." Just the same, he is one of our very best schoolmates, and we'll miss him when he leaves.

Athletic Asociation.

JOSEPHINE JACKSON GARBER

Josephine possesses a charming modesty. She has the happy faculty of seeing things as they are. She is a very lovable girl, and we hate to give her up. We know that her distinctive personality will live in our memories forever.

J. BLAIR GILLIAM

"To be popular is the best of things."

To a master of the Terpsichorean art, to a promoter of pleasure, and to a good student, I now introduce you. Blair has proved himself a true Marshallite. In future years we shall say, "It was a pleasure, indeed an honor, to have been a classmate of Blair's."

Athletic Association.

PAMELIA ANNE GARY

Sweet, timid and bashful to the casual observer, yet to those who know her best, she is lively, vivacious and always on hand for a good time.

However, good times are not her only thoughts. For despite the number of "frat" parties and dates on school nights, she usually "pulls" passing grades.

May your coming years be as carefree as those spent at John Marshall.

ROSA ELIZABETH GASSER

"Her voice was ever soft, gentle and low; an excellent thing in woman."

Our dear little Rosa has this commendable quality and numerous others, too. Whenever one needs a helping hand, she is always ready to be of service. Unassuming in manner and very attractive, "Rhody" has our prediction for a successful future.

Patriotic Society. Athletic Association.

HELEN GASSER

Helen is the good Samaritan to all in need. What would we do without her?

Don't think, however, that she runs only to lessons. If you ever want to know a jolly good sport, apply to Helen.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association. Patriotic Club.

MARIE GATHRIGHT

Marie possesses those qualities which attract our admiration and inspire in us a love for the best. A pretty winsome little brunette with an amiable disposition and a heart sympathetic and pure as gold—that is Marie. What more could one desire?

We all love you, Marie, and hope your future may be even happier than you are planning.

WILLIAM NELSON GLENN

What is so rare as a red-headed person without a fiery temper? Yet, this is what we have found William to be. Always ready to help us over the rough places in life, he has learned the secret of the art of making lasting friends.

MARION HELEN GODBOLD

Helen is perhaps our youngest graduate. This may give an inkling of the good grades she has earned, but it does not tell that everyone admires her, too. She is bubbling over with good nature and fun, and she has succeeded in imparting a great deal of her character to her classmates. Since she hails from Carolina, we feel that the Old North State is to be congratulated.

Athletic Association.

FRANK CLIFFORD GODSEY

"They are, indeed, gifted who have both wit and wits."

If you don't know this young man, you'd better get acquainted right away, because "Cliff" is the kind to make you turn around and look twice. "Cliff" is well-known and loved by all of his friends, who join in wishing him success when he departs from old John Marshall.

LEONE VASHTI GODSEY

"Who is that tall, stylish-looking girl going down the hall?" Quite often you hear this question asked, and the response is always, "Vashti Godsey!" You never see her that she isn't smiling, for she naturally radiates smiles all the time. We'll miss her greatly when she leaves us in February.

Athletic Association. Girls' High School Club.

EDITH VIRGINIA GORDON

When we speak of "someone smart," we mean Edith. She could give us all a little of her knowledge, and then have enough left to "keep her going."

She is a favorite with her friends, and we may say truly that to number her as a friend is a privilege. Good luck, Edith!

Girls' High School Club.

RALPH GOODE

Who in John Marshall doesn't know Ralph, with his ever-ready smile and perpetual good humor? Ralph is very popular in school, and he who has his friendship, values it very highly. We feel certain that his sunny disposition and unusual personality will enable him to pass safely over the ruts and crevices in the highway of life.

Corporal, Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

ELLEN DOUGLAS GORDON

"It never rains but it pours." In the showering of both talents and offices, "Dougie" seems to have gained an unusual number. As one of our prospective poets her fame has spread throughout Virginia.

When it comes to making friends, helping friends, and keeping friends, "Dougie" can be depended on "anytime, any place, anywhere."

Secretary, Senior Class. Associate Editor, Record. Class Poet. First Vice-President, Patriotic Club. Recording Secretary, Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association. Class Historian, '20, '21, '22.

J. MONTROSE GRAHAM

Montrose is, no doubt, the brainiest boy in the Senior class. He has acquired great height as well as great knowledge. However, neither his jovial, generous nature nor his popularity has suffered in effect. His ability, especially in the literary line, and his determination enable him to attack things with vigor and to accomplish them with success.

Associate Editor, Marshallite. Athletic Association.

IDA CLAIRE GREEN

Who is this?—Well, I declare!
Who is this?—Why, Ida Claire!
Tho' her surname may be Green,
She's as far from this as fat from lean.

Her delightful, incessant chatter has won for her a never-to-be-forgotten place in the hearts of her schoolmates, as her perseverance has in the hearts of the faculty.

WAYNE GRIMM

"Better late than never."

This seems to be Wayne's motto, for it is a rare achievement for him to come to school before 8:24.

John Marshall develops two kinds of pupils: athletes and students. Wayne may be classed under both, for he aspires to the honors of Walter Johnson and yet studies enough to "get by."

We predict a big league career for you, Wayne.

Baseball '21, '22, '23. Basketball '23.

CECIL GRIGGS

2 blue eyes
2 handfuls of long, light hair
2 cheeks like roses
1 sunny smile

Mix well. Then add neatness, an attractive personality, and high ideals. Cut into a lovable girl, and you have Cecil.

Athletic Association. Girls' High School Club.

CATHRYN JUDSON GWALTNEY

Cathryn sings her Senior days away
Joyful as a lark;
Brilliant are her thoughts that gleam and play
Like candles in the dark.
Friendly to the world—when she shall go
Patiently along
Life's glad road to happiness, we know
It will be with a song.

Girls' High School Club. Patriotic Club. Athletic Association.

ROBERT WILLIAM GRUNDY

Robert is quite a student. His reputation as a speller is well-known. He is clever, agreeable, and very loyal to our school. May success accompany him in whatever he may attempt in the future.

Athletic Association.

LAWRENCE GIBBON

Lawrence, better known as "Mike," in his four years at John Marshall has been little heard and little seen. It is said he is "some" student when he studies, but this he rarely does.

He has withstood the charms of many at our school, but we hear he has "fallen" for a student at St. Catherine's. Who is she?

DOROTHY WALTON HARRISON

"Dot" has dark hair, brown eyes, a sweet smile, and a charming disposition. She is a good sport, a true friend, and an ever-ready helper.

We are sure of your success, "Dot," if you make as many friends in the future as you have since you have been with us.

LUCILLE HOLLADAY

In the classroom Lucille is "seen and not heard"—unless she is called on. Then her knowledge is poured forth in such a steady stream that we wonder how one frail person could know so much. With her, knowledge implies modesty. She is not restrained, however, in her social relations.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

JULIA HOWELL HUGHES

Years from now Marshallites will not need to get this book from the top shelf in the library to remember Julia Howell. Each day with her has been a gold-edged page in our memory book. A precious little volume it is, too.

May her future be as bright as she has made her classmates.

Athletic Association. Patriotic Society.

LINWOOD HYSLUP

John Marshall knows a good thing. Linwood is one of the most loyal Marshallites. The Cadet Corps also recognizes him as one of its best sergeants. He is quiet, it is true, but you know the old saying about "being seen and not heard." May Dame Fortune ever be your companion.

Athletic Association. Cadet Corps.

JOE HORWITZ

Joe is a living example of that old saying, "Where there's a will, there's a way." This is especially true in Latin, since he manages to "pull" a 95 in that subject. He hopes to be a "shark" in the medical profession also. We trust he will not only be a "shark" but a "whale" in his undertaking.

ELIZABETH HUNDLEY

When seeking a true friend, just ride out to Highland Park for Elizabeth. You will find in her an all-'round, sporty chum.

We see her very serious and attentive in class, but get her in a crowd, where has her seriousness flown? Here's wishing you lots of happiness and a successful career!

Athletic Association.

MARY ELIZABETH HUGHES

A happy disposition and a winning personality have won Mary many friends among both sexes while at John Marshall.

She is that dear little girl with blue eyes, who always has something interesting to tell us. We shall miss you, Mary, when you leave us, for we are losing a true Marshallite.

Athletic Association.

LOIS HOLMES

While Lois is not exactly a devotee of the midnight oil, still her teachers like her. She has a cheerful smile and a jolly greeting for everyone.

Your host of friends wish you success and happiness in all your undertakings, Lois.

EDWIN AND RAMON HARTZ

We have twins in John Marshall called
"Pete" and "Repete."
You can't tell them apart when they're seen on the street;
But in school for three years they have made themselves known,
And in everyone's heart they constructed a home.
They are equal in everything, intellect.
too,
And are two fine supporters of the White and the Blue.

Corporals, Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

LAURA HOBSON

Laura is one of those quiet individuals whom everyone admires. She is studious but not so much so that she doesn't like to have a good time. Because she is cheerful, sympathetic and ever willing to help a fellow-student, she has won a host of friends at John Marshall.

Laura, we all wish you every success in your life's career, whatever it may be.

ORVILLE S. HARRIS

Orville is one of the most quiet and unassuming of our boys. However, this does not prevent him from being—as he is—a very loyal supporter of John Marshall. To lessons, no matter how unwelcome they may be, he is always faithful, while books appear to fascinate him, if his fondness for reading is the judge.

Athletic Association.

BEULAH HATCHER

B is for busy as we know her to be.
E is for energy, for this we can see.
U is for usefulness, for she does her part.
L is for love that comes from her heart.
A is for amiable, and indeed this is so.
H is for happiness wherever she may go.

JOHN WINSTON HARGROVE

John is the little fellow with dark hair who can sit very still and never speak unless spoken to. However, when he does say anything, it is worth hearing, especially if the subject is history. He is rather shy with the girls, but we're inclined to believe that he is an ardent admirer of the fair sex from a safe distance.

Athletic Association. Cadet Corps.

META S. HARRIS

"Big oaks from little acorns grow."

Meta is small in stature only. Being very studious, she has succeeded in reaching an advanced stage of knowledge at an early age. Her big heart and sunny disposition have made her a girl John Marshall may be proud of. We heartily wish her success in whatever she may undertake.

JUDITH BRANSFORD HILL

She is not easy to know, but when you do know her, you will find that this brown-haired girl is a truly good sport, and is ready for any fun that comes along.

CHARLES HARDWICKE, Jr.

Allow me to introduce one of those fellows who brightens life with a good word and a bright smile for everybody.

We'll surely miss you, Charlie, when you leave, and we wish you all possible success in life.

Athletic Association. Corporal, Cadet Corps.

ETHEL HITE

It's a studious person we lose when Ethel leaves John Marshall. What would we do without her humorous and straightforward remarks in the classroom? She has attracted many friends by her jolly disposition. Lawyers certainly do require wit and brains; and possessed with this combination, Ethel should be one of Richmond's most prominent lawyers.

WILLIAM LYNE HARDENBERG

Behold a true Marshallite! This is Bill, sturdy, strong, and handsome, always with a smile and a pleasant word. He is one of those people who makes life worth living and who will never be forgotten.

Bill's natural gift lies in science, and when he takes his place in the world, Edison and Marconi had better look to their laurels.

Sergeant, Cadet Corps.

MARIAN ELLIS HIGGASON

Marian is just about as big as a minute, and if she really were one, it certainly would be sixty seconds of joy and laughter. Marian is the kind of person you love to have around, because she always seems to be happy. The "blues" naturally vanish when she's in sight. Best wishes, Marian, as you launch out into life.

Athletic Association. Girls' High School Club. Patriotic Club.

JOHN MELVIN HERR

A well-known and familiar figure at John Marshall is that of Melvin Herr. He has been in the limelight almost ever since he first came here. It has been a pleasure to us all to know him, and surely we wish him all manner of good luck for the future. We can say quite confidently that Dame Fortune can not help smiling on him if he but sing to her.

KATHRYNE O. HECHLER

Hypothesis:

Kitty is a good Marshallite in and out of class.

Proof:

She is overflowing with fun.
Her friends are many.
She has been successful at J. M.

Conclusion:

Her future success.

WILTON HOOD

For four long years Wilton battled with the almost invincible giants, Mathematics and Science, to whom many have succumbed, but he came out the victor. Before him the mighty Trigonometry fell, and Physics was overcome by his strenuous efforts.

Wilton's good nature and pleasant disposition have won for him many friends who wish him great success in his undertakings.

Athletic Association.

FREEDA HARRELL

Freeda! Why, of course, you know her; every one does. She is that pretty little girl with light hair, who has a smile for every one. Freeda's outstanding characteristic is making friends. She knows how to make and hold them. Once your friend, always your friend, is her theory. Freeda, we hope your future career will be as successful as that at J. M. H. S.

DAVID HERMAN

His smiling face is aglow with ambition and resolution. His host of friends agree that he is bound to make his mark. Since he's decided to be a great orator, David has become one of Cicero's ardent admirers, and we feel sure that if the dead could speak, this famous man would join with us in wishing him success.

Athletic Association.

ROSA LEE HARGROVE

Good friends are scarce,
And true friends are few;
But we have found Rosa Lee
A Marshallite true-blue.

There is more truth than poetry in this. Every one who is acquainted with Rosa Lee knows that she is a worthy pal and a dear classmate. Here's to our little friend who has added much happiness to our school days.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association. Patriotic Club.

HELEN PAULINE WRIGHT

Do you know Helen? Well, if you don't, just get busy at once and find her out, and you will wish you had known her sooner. She is known throughout J. M. H. S. by her winning smile and her sunny disposition. Her attractive personality will keep the memory of her always fresh.

Rudolph Hassel

EVELYN HALE

Evelyn's the name;
Barton Heights the home;
Of the maiden that here you see,
She's both bright and witty,
And likewise she's pretty.
What more could one wish to be?

Sunshine and rain,
Happiness and pain
In each life must be.
Oh, may the sunshine
And the rain combine
To make but a rainbow for thee.

RUDOLPH HASSEL

Rudolph entered J. M. H. S. in February, 1918, as one of the smallest, if not the most diminutive in size, of his class. He may be little, but have you ever heard him toot his horn? He is full of fun and always in for a good time. Rudolph has acquired many friends during his four years here.

Athletic Association. Cadet Corps.

JOSEPHINE JOHNSTON

A mixture of fun and studiousness is "Jo." She is a person upon whom we can always rely for anything, from lessons to a good time, and she will carry our hearts with her when she leaves.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

MARGARET E. JONES

"True friendship is to be desired above riches."

Thus we find Margaret ever smiling and in good humor. Never has she failed to prove a friend to a friend in need.

Margaret has made many friends while at J. M., and they all wish her much success. May she ever keep the smile and good humor that she has had while she was among us.

EVELYN JONES

No matter where you chance to see her, you will always be welcomed with a cheery smile. She is an all-'round good friend and seems ever ready to make your path smoother. Evelyn's winsome ways have won her many staunch friends during her High School days.

Athletic Association.

HARRY JUDD

Brown eyes and black hair—that's Judd. This sounds too pretty for a boy, yet it is true.

Judd came to us from Mineral, Va., in September, and has proved a great favorite in school, especially among the cadets.

Here's to you, Harry! May Fortune attend you.

Cadet Corps.

ELEANOR JONES

A stranger in our midst! But in this one short year that she has been with us, her fellow-classmates have discovered a genuineness about her that creates a vast amount of respect and admiration. It is not, however, her wholesouled personality, but rather a ladylike modesty that accounts for the fact that only a few have recognized in Eleanor an able artist.

Athletic Association.

F. BRUCE JACKSON

A dashing, fiery cavalier is Bruce. He is popu'ar with the students, especially the fair sex, and holds a place in the hearts of the faculty. He is also a staunch supporter of all school affairs and will ever be remembered as a member of the unconquerable football team of 1922.

Sergeant, Cadet Corps. Record Staff. Marshallite Staff. Football '22.

MOLLY VIRGINIA JONES

Among the quiet, unassuming girls of the class is Molly. She is very attractive and is also a good student. We all agree that attractiveness plus a studious disposition is a happy combination and one greatly to be desired by anyone.

Girls' High School Club.

JAKE KAMINSKY

Jake is known around John Marshall as "Paderewski," and we admit that he certainly can play the violin. In addition to his musical abilities Jake is making High School in three years. His ambition is to be a great violinist, and we shall be proud of him when we hear him on the concert platform in the near future. Here's luck to you, Jake, and may world-wide fame be yours.

Patriotic Society. Orchestra.

MINNIE KAUFMAN

Have you ever seen Minnie when she wasn't willing to do a favor for someone? She is ever ready to co-operate in any scheme and to back it up with worth-while ideas. Minnie has her ideals, too, and success is sure to come her way.

CHARLES WILLIAMSON KENT

As Ted Ray told Harry Vardon, "It takes a good man to make the golf course in '85'." Charlie has proved himself a good man by making the Hermitage course in "85" and the J. M. course in four years.

Charlie is also a student of ability, since he takes Latin and Physics.

It is useless to wish Charlie success in his medical career, as we know he will attain his goal.

Athletic Association.

MILDRED KAY

Mildred loves mathematics, and she is always willing to help those who know but little about it. She is very loyal and dependable. May her life be a happy and prosperous one.

THELMA B. KEENE

Thelma is just a symphony of good qualities, and each chord seems to blend in perfect harmony. Do you know of a more versatile girl than Thelma? To enumerate her accomplishmetns would be impossible, but her real determination and her natural ability assure her of the best that life holds.

ROBERT M. KENT, III

"Little folks should be seen and not heard."

This saying was never better applied, for "Bobbie" is rarely ever heard, except by friends, and may be seen now and then, with the aid of a miscrope.

Bobbie is an untiring worker along all lines of endeavor and will always be remembered for his witty remarks.

Athletic Association.

DOROTHY KELLY

Did you ever know that so many good qualities could be embodied in one person as the number "Dot" may boast? She's the best pal you've ever known. Her friends are so numerous that it would be impossible to count them.

Keep up the good work, Dot, and Dame Fortune will be sure to smile on you!

JANICE KEPPLER

If you think that scholarship and a pleasing countenance are not harmonious, just take a look at Janice. We take off our hats to anyone who can do Latin without ruining her appearance.

Girls' High School Club.

MARGARET GARDNER KING

"Her very frowns are fairer far
Than smiles of other madiens are."

If you don't believe it, get introduced to "Boots." She may have that "can't" and "I don't know" habit in class, and believe that "to flunk a test is human," yet her attractive personality more than makes up for any deficiency. No wonder we all admire her.

Athletic Association. Girls' High School Club. Patriotic Club.

GLADYS KIDD

Have you ever met Gladys strolling through the halls? If you haven't, you have missed seeing a blithe, gay, and industrious student of J. M.

Here's to you, Gladys! May your future be as bright as your present.

ERNEST COLEMAN KERSEY

Ernest needs no introduction to the majority of us, and things wouldn't seem just right without him. He has a reputation for many things, but especially is he musically inclined. His cheery smile and friendly disposition have won him a large number of friends who all join in wishing him the best o' luck.

Athletic Association. Cadet Corps.

GERTRUDE KIPP

Gertrude hails from Utica, New York, and if there are any more there like her, let's have them. Although she has been with us only a short time, she knows what it means to be a Marshallite. Her modest brilliance has charmed us all.

WILBUR KOCEN

Wilbur needs no introduction, for he is so widely known that our class would seem incomplete without him. Some day we will see in him a prominent naval radio operator.

Athletic Association.

ALICE LYONS KIRK

"A flash of color beneath the sky."

Blue-eyed, flaxen-haired, and rosy-cheeked, Alice graces the Senior Class. Her voice is gentle, and her manner quiet. However, there are numerous sparks of humor and sunshine radiating from her personality.

Girls' High School Club. Patriotic Club. Athletic Association.

RUTH LADD

The class of '23 has in its ranks a young lady who has a seemingly perpetual smile and the qualities that make a good classmate. She has won the hearts of many by her pleasing personality. Such an all-around girl will surely succeed in her life work, whatever it may be.

Patriotic Society.

ELIZA MAY LUKHARD

Let us introduce you to Eliza May, better known to us as "May." She is a good sport as well as a true friend. We all wish her happiness and success in whatever she may do.

VIRGINIA LANGE LIPSCOMBE

When this book becomes "one of the former Marshallites," you may not remember that Virginia's hair was light or that her eyes were blue. You will think of her as she will ever be—a true friend, a willing helpmate, and a good sport.

May the world be good to her and preserve her as she is.

Athletic Association. Patriotic Society.

VIRGINIA W. LACY

Virginia is one of the jolliest girls at old J. M. H. S. and the best pal ever. That's why we all love her. She certainly believes in being seen and heard at all times and on all occasions. Her many friends join in wishing her the best o' luck in the future.

Athletic Association.

DAVID LAIRD

Oh, David is a country "Laird"
As country laddies go,
But many a lass has won his heart,
So you know he isn't slow!
His common sense, sincerity,
Good humor, and his smile
Have made us all just love him,
And wish him things worth while.

ELDRIDGE LONGEST

Eldridge has not been in the limelight, but he has made a good record in his studies. When it comes to supporting any school activities, he is "Johnny on the spot." We all wish Dame Fortune may bestow upon him her choicest gifts.

Athletic Association.

IRENE LOWRY

What more could a friend of a maiden say
Than that she was blithesome and happy always?
This blue-eyed maid you can see, at a glance,
Doesn't use in her vocabulary too many "I can'ts."
When the problems are hard and no way out can be seen,
Her friends call out lustily for help from Irene.

Girls' High School Club.

MARGARET LONGSWORTH

"'Tis the songs you sing and the smiles you wear
That make the sunshine everywhere."

Margaret's winning personality and comical remarks are enough to lead her through life successfully.

Here's luck to you, Margaret!

LOUIS LOVENSTEIN

There is no need of introducing this member of the class. He is not only an excellent student, but he is also active in all the school activities. Everyone knows him by his pleasing manners and his readiness to take part in any prank. His ambition and determination are sure to gain for him great success. We wish you the best that life holds, Louis.

Patriotic Club. Athletic Association.

ALIS LOEHR

If John Marshall should endorse a woman for President of the United States, that woman would certainly be Alis. So far as we know, she has the clearest head in the Senior Class. Her knowledge of practical affairs is great, indeed, and so is her popularity. A splendid contralto voice, an erect carriage, and a great deal of literary ability arouse our admiration.

Record Staff. Girls' High School Club. Patriotic Club. Athletic Association.

STUART LAMKIN

No one ever accused "Stickey" of being a lamb with the ladies, but few who know him for his friendly manner and studious appearance have guessed the romantic spirit that lurks beneath these attributes.

Did you ever hear of the three "sweet young things" who once serenaded him with a ukelele?—but that's another story. We're wishing the top of the morning to you, Stuart.

Editor-in-Chief of Record. Associate Editor of Marshallite. Cadet Corps.

ALICE EDITH LICHTENSTEIN

"From her who offereth me knowledge
I will take tenfold."

Allow me to present Alice, one of the most brilliant of us all. She is one who upon acquaintance is even more attractive. We love and admire her for her humor and affability. Alice likes to dance—and who can blame her? Here's wishing you success, Alice!

Record Staff. Athletic Association. Girls' High School Club. Patriotic Socicty.

CHARLOTTE RANDOLPH LEWIS

That small piece of femininity that you have no doubt seen ornamenting the halls of John Marshall for the past few years is Charlotte. Her accomplishments appear to include everything from lessons to sweaters, and her life's success seems assured.

Girls' High School Club.

T. HUTCHISON LEATH

We wonder what young god stepped down from Mt. Olympus in the form of "Hutchie." Fate decreed then that no member of the fair sex might gaze upon his six feet two and not——? especially if he's ever guided her across the ballroom floor. So long, "Hutchie," and here's wishing you heaps of great things for the future.

Manager Football, '21. First Lieutenant, Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

ANNIE DEANE LEWIS

Annie Deane is a persistent creature! Somehow she seems to gain whatever she resolves. And we must confess that perseverance is not her only weapon, for personality can win things, too!

Patriotic Society. Girls' High School Club.

MINNIE LEVY

Minnie is a chum and classmate such as is rarely found. She is modest and sedate, yet is not, by any means, devoid of pep and wit. Her humor, combined with her friendliness, makes her extremely attractive.

EUGENE LAUGHLIN

Everyone who goes to John Marshall knows our flashy Drum Major of the Cadet Band. To describe him would be indeed hard, but if you see a boy brimming over with fun, you can venture it's "Gene." He is the finest kind of a "gloom-chaser" and is a great favorite with the fair sex. We hope you will be a favorite everywhere.

Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

TIMOTHY LEONARD

Just ask Timothy any question about an auto motor—he knows. He is the original star in science. If Archimedes could get one peep at Tim's physics papers, he would run through the streets shouting, "Eureka!" Though he is very quiet, Timothy's mind is always on the alert. We're expecting great things of you, Tim!

MARY LEONARD

At last a new Mary, not with a little lamb, but ever wavy hair! She always gets good marks, and you should hear her "parlez-vous." We've never seen her when she didn't have a ready smile and a helping hand for the less fortunate. She is bound to succeed.

Athletic Association.

MARTHA VIRGINIA LEE

Although she may have the prettiest name in the Senior Class—Virginia Lee, we agree that to her also belongs the distinction of owning the sweetest personality. Her motto seems to be sacrifice—of time, desire, and self, and it appears an excellent one from the number of friends and admirers she has acquired, from the success that characterizes all her work, and from the sinking feeling that accompanies the thought of leaving her.

Chairman Social Committee, Girls' High School Club. Record Staff. Athletic Association.

EDWARD F. WATSON

One September not long ago, "Eddie" dropped into J. M. for a little visit of four years. Since that time he has been taxing his massive (?) brain to become a senior, but has been so quiet about it that we hardly knew he was here. The boys say, "Watson's a good fellow," and everybody agrees—girls, faculty, and all.

MARGARET LECKY

With the closing of four years of joyous fellowship and acquaintance, Margaret will leave a most pleasant impression upon her many classmates. Tall and slender, in the bloom of her youth, she possesses those qualities that make life worth while.

Athletic Association. Girls' High School Club.

FRANCES DOROTHY LAWRENCE

"Dot!" The name itself suggests gentleness and sweetness, both of which are characteristic of her. To know "Dot" is to love her. She has made for herself a host of friends. We shall miss you when you leave us, but we know you are going to be a success. Here's wishing you the best of luck in anything you may undertake!

JAMES M. MAYFIELD

Jimmie is a good-natured fellow and the possessor of an equal amount of fun and studiousness. All who know him agree that he is one of the best sports in our class.

With his amiable disposition and determined spirit Jimmie is sure to win many friends and great success in his future life.

ULAI MANGUM

Ulai is sedate and dignified, yet she is a pleasant companion, willing to be of service to any who need her help. She is a diligent student with plenty of school spirit.

May success and happiness be hers.

LILLIAN MARTIN

Lillian is always full of life and is a jolly good friend. Her pleasing personality has won for her many true friends. She is an all-'round good sport, but always has time to prepare her studies carefully. May she succeed as well in her future life as at John Marshall.

VIRGINIA MARTIN

Here's to the girl who is jolly and kind
And with such a nature as you seldom find!

Virginia is just a bit of sunshine. Her cheerful and lighthearted ways make her a desirable chum. She is a willing worker and loyal student. May her future be crowned with success.

KENNETH McRAE

Possibly you haven't made Kenneth's acquaintance, for he's very modest and reserved. He is a conscientious student and an earnest friend. Once your friend, he's always your friend. We do not fear for his future, for his grim determination and integrity will never weaken. Here's wishing him the greatest success.

VAN MASSEY

Van is a sweet and attractive little girl whom to know is to love. If you want a true friend and pal upon whom you can depend, choose Van. She is always ready for a jolly good time, but the high marks she makes prove that she never neglects duty for pleasure. We predict for her a bright, happy, and useful career.

MARVEL McCANN

Have you ever seen a rainy day without rain? Have you ever seen Marvel without a smile? Both are just about as improbable. Marvel never worries—and it is indeed "the girl worth while who can smile when everything else goes dead wrong."

MARVIN RAYMOND MILLER

"When you work, work hard; when you play, play hard!" This seems to be Raymond's motto, and a good one it is. He has an abundance of school spirit, too, as he attends all the games and even followed the team to Newport News Thanksgiving. Quiet, sincere, and dependable is Raymond, and he leaves us with our sincerest wishes.

Athletic Association. Cadet Corps.

FLORENCE V. KIMMEL

High ideals and conscientious endeavor tend to make an intelligent, true woman. Florence's goal has been no less. She brought a good record to John Marshall, and she hasn't failed to keep it up. May her life's record be one of continual success!

Associate Editor of Marshallite. Athletic Association.

MARY MANON McGINNIS

Where Manon gets her talents
We really can't relate,
Unless it is because she comes,
From out the "Old North State."
Warm-hearted—friends aplenty—
She's envied quite a bit;
And we confess she's reason to Be proud of it.

Emma McLauchlan

EVELYN TURNER

Evelyn—do you know her? She is a most delightful companion, always ready for fun. Her smile is a guarantee of success in her future life. Here's good luck to you and a happy life.

ALICE McKAY

"Her voice was ever soft and sweet,
An excellent thing in woman."

Alice's sweet voice brings pleasure to many hearts, as does her skilful touch on the piano and pipe organ.

May you find the happiness you deserve as you go through life, Alice.

BERKELEY MILLS

Such a bright light on Richmond's seven hills—
Ah! tis the red head of Berkeley Mills,
Whose keen wit and ready smiles
Will carry him all through life's weary miles,
And win him friends far and near Through each coming year.

Cadet Corps.

EMMA McLAUCHLAN

Have you ever noticed that interesting, jolly brunette in the corridor? Well, that's Emma. She's very friendly and quite funny without deliberately trying to be so, and for these reasons we wish her good luck.

EVELYN MELLON

Virginia as well as John Marshall will sustain a great loss this year, for Evelyn has informed us that she expects to move to California. But our loss is California's gain, for Evelyn is a girl to be depended upon.

Best luck, success and happiness go with you, dear pal.

Athletic Association.

BRUCE DOUGLAS MOORING

Bruce is indeed a boy of varied characteristics. He is full of fun and laughter and yet is an appreciative lover of the beautiful.

Big and athletic of stature he is fashioned by nature to be a hero but a hero with a soul that glories not in victory but in a cause.

We can predict a successful career for Bruce.

Sergeant, Cadet Corps. Athletic Association. Patriotic Club. Football Squad of '21. Track Squad of '21-'22.

EVELYN MORRISSETT

Whenever you feel gloomy, look up Evelyn, and you'll find her on hand with a smile and a cheery word. She believes in—"Smile and the world smiles with you."

Keep it up, Evelyn.

RUBY TAYLOR MOORE

We expect to enter one day a hospital and see a quiet, willing, and cheerful nurse, for that's what Ruby wishes to be. That the success and happiness which have attended your career at John Marshall may be with you in the work of your choice, fellow-Marshallite, is the wish of your fellow-classmates.

VIRGINIA McMURTRY

Somewhere back in the ages,
Bards sang of deeds brave and bold,
But this is the song of a girl we call
"Gin,"
Whose heart is of pure gold.
She has hair like the mist of Ceylon;
Two brown eyes afire with youth;
A smile as contagious as measles;
An intellect brilliant, forscoth.

CECIL MORRIS

Cecil is inclined to be rather a serious-minded individual, but once the barriers of reserve are broken down, one will find rare wisdom and judgment. He deserves the best of the world's offering, and we are sure that he will never be satisfied with the second best.

GLADYS MORRISSETTE

Do you know a little girl who is always in a good humor, always ready to have a good time? Her winning smile has won many friends among us. She is better known among her friends as "Little Bit," but never mind, Gladys, "the best of jewels come in small packages."

We wish you success as you leave us.

LESLIE MORRISSETTE

"And of all best things upon earth
I hold that a faithful friend is best."

That's Leslie; a good student, a pal as true as steel, and a friend as constant as the stars. Leslie has attained success at J. M. by just being himself, and he will reach the pinnacle of success in life the same way.

S'long; may you be as successful elsewhere as you have been at J. M. H. S.

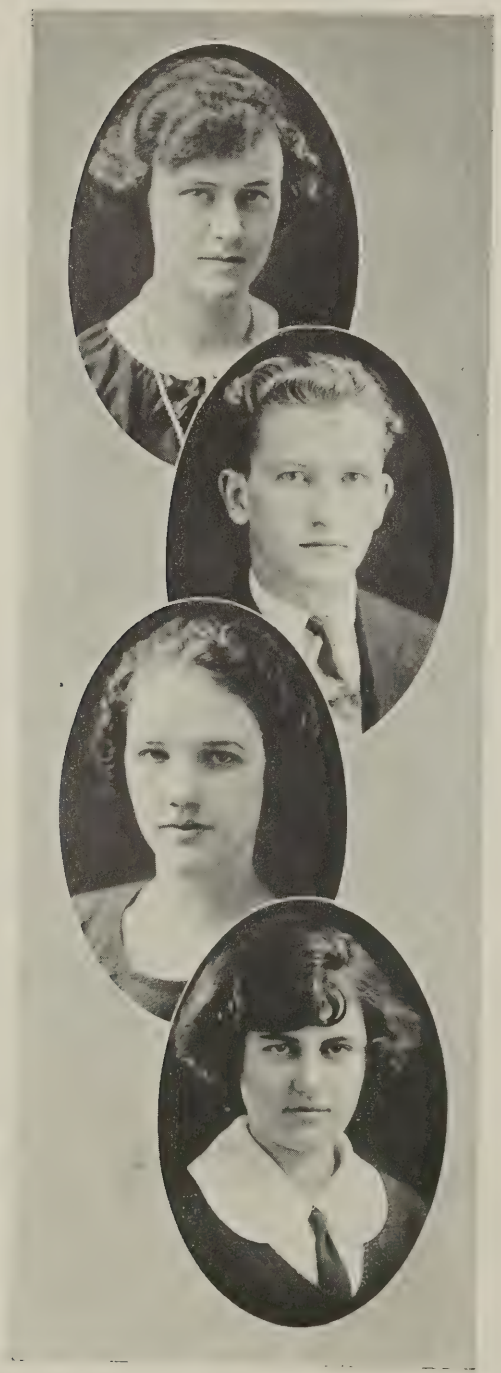
Earnest George possesses great ability as an historian, and his studiousness and integrity will be sure to carry him to a high plane of life.

Here's hoping that, though he may experience rains of trouble, there will always be the rainbow of happiness and the pot of success.



ETHEL MORAN

Here's to Ethel, pretty and sweet.
She's a girl who's hard to beat.
Always smiling, always gay
Is the way you'll find her every day.
She's true to herself and true to her friends,
And a helping hand she always lends.
Ethel! May your future be crowned with success,
And of luck we wish you the best.

TERRILL MONTGOMERY

Some years ago the September winds blew in a real Marshallite. Not an ill wind, for an ill wind could never bring such good fortune. Terrill has a combination of pluck, energy, and perseverance. Those qualities, in the long dash through life, are bound to overcome all obstacles and place him in the class of those who have accomplished great things.

"To know her is to love her,
And to love but her forever."

Who could help loving Mary with her sunny smile and winning ways? She's always ready to help you, no matter how busy she is, and she's—well—a real good pal. Here's wishing you the best kind o' luck, Mary.

Athletic Association.

MARGARET E. MUSSER

If we feel proud to know a person of talent, we should be delighted to have Margaret amongst us. She finds the brush as close a friend as the pen, and

"With her you stand in misty places far,
With her you meet each mystic joy and woe."

"Good hunting," Margaret.

Annual Staff. Record Staff. Patriotic Club. Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

IZOLA MULFORD

Who has not seen this rosy-cheeked, brown-eyed girl, laughing in the corridors? Izola's cheerful disposition and sweet personality have won for her many true friends in John Marshall. We hate to lose you, "I," but hope that your kindergarten career will be as successful as that at John Marshall. Here's wishing you luck.

Athletic Association. Patriotic Society.

DORIS NEWTON

Doris is always jolly and bright,
We've found her quite beguiling.
We've never seen her day or night
That she wasn't smiling.
She likes to work, and she likes to play,
Her countenance disperses worry.
The Marshallites will much sorrow display
When she leaves in February.

Orchestra.

NATHAN NOVECK

Having the ability to grasp things quickly—and to hold them—constitutes a good student. Since Nathan is endowed with such qualities, it is to be expected that he is above the ordinary level. Nathan's career at J. M. H. S. has been one grand "run" of success. We hope that your life's "run" will be as successful.

MARIE ANNA NOLDE

True to herself, to her friends, and to her duties—this is Marie. She is not always serious; far from it at times.

The best of luck we wish you,
And happiness that will last,
Success in everything you do,
And friendship, strong and fast.

Athletic Association.

MARY NEWELL NEALE

Newell has learned one great lesson in life—she never worries over affairs that she cannot help.

She is quiet, loves her studies, and hopes to attain high honors at college, after she leaves John Marshall.

JOE OSBORNE

Behold, the innocent sufferer! If there are six boys disturbing a class, Joe will be the one to get the demerit. In spite of his many misfortunes, he has managed to retain a pleasant disposition by which he has won many friends. Here's hoping you may be more successful in dodging blame hereafter!

Athletic Association. Cadet Corps.

MYRA PRIDDY

"Smile and the world smiles with you." This is her motto. Her lovable manner is known to all her fellow-classmates. But who is she? Why, it is Myra, the girl of smiles and fun, the girl to whom we all go for consolation and sympathy.

We hope, Myra, that your future may be one of perfect happiness and success.

JOHN BARBOUR ORGAIN, Jr.

If John is as successful in the world as he has been at capturing the hearts of our damsels, we predict great things for him. When he goes, however, a great many others will miss him besides the girls. Ask any boy if John isn't a good sport, and ask the teachers about his record as a student.

Here's wishing you luck, John. We know you'll succeed.

Patriotic Society. Athletic Association. Record Staff. Cadet Corps. Vice-President, Boys' Debating Club.

BERNARD OSLIN

Anyone with a strong character and will doesn't need a string of adjectives to describe him, so we'll say that Bernard is a true sport, and let it go at that.

Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

VIRGINIA PETERS

Her name is Virginia. What more could be said? Her favorite occupation is smiling, and she's never off the job. With her fun, friendliness, and foolishness, Virginia drives away care and brings in their places laughter and sunshine. May success be ever yours!

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association. Patriotic Society.

MINNIE R. PHAUP

"Loyal-hearted, strong of mind—
A finer girl you'll nowhere find."

This is Minnie herself!

Her scores of friends pay due tribute to her attractive personality and keen intellect. Minnie loves her books (out of sight) but everyone gives her credit for being a "good guesser." We all hope she will "guess true" through her college career.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

THOMAS PARKER

Tom is noted for two things: his humor and his school spirit. There is always a good time when he is around because of his constant flow of jokes. Has anybody ever missed seeing him at any Marshallite game?

We all predict that Tom's future in the business world will be as successful as his career at John Marshall.

Athletic Association.

BETTY PARSLEY

Here is Betty of the smiling face. Her sweet and sympathetic nature has won the love of all who are so fortunate as to know her. The way she "parlez-vous" makes us open our eyes in wonder. The best o' luck to you, Betty.

CHARLES PUCKETT

Highland Park has sent us many students of many kinds, but never before has she given to us one more quiet and self-effacing than Charles. However, he has the energy, the determination, and the mental ability which will mean success to him in whatever he undertakes.

ANNE ELIZABETH PULLIAM

Hasty in speech, oh never!
In the making of things very clever,
Without her slow smile, hardly ever
Is Liz.
The one who keeps on 'til the end,
The girl on whom many depend,
The very best kind of a friend,
She is.

Athletic Association. Girls' High School Club.

J. PERCY PREGNALL

"Pucky" seems to possess an inexhaustible supply of good humor and energy. He's always willing to work hard at anything he's called upon to do. Lately he appears to have taken a decided fancy to the ladies, and we wish him success not only along this line but also in everything he attempts in the future.

Athletic Association. Cadet Corps.

RUBY MARION PRUETT

The Graduating Class of '23 has as a member a loyal student and follower. This little "bunch" of cheerfulness has won many friends by her light-hearted ways. Success as great in future life as at John Marshall is what we predict for you.

Athletic Association.

P. HARRISON PICOT

Have you ever heard anybody merrily whistling through the halls of J. M.? If you have, you can be sure it is "Pete," for through constant practice he has become a past master in that little-known art.

"Pete" has mastered other things also, among them physics, trigonometry, and some of the fair sex.

We all wish you success, "Pete," and don't forget J. M. and its attractions (?).

Athletic Association. Football Scrub '22.

BERNICE PARRISH

Bernice is a jolly lass,
Her smile is simply "corking."
Of all the girls in our class
She does the "mostest talking!"
Her eyes speak with her mouth (that's queer)
Throughout the livelong day.
Old J. M. halls will seem so drear
When Bernice goes away.

MARTHA JANE PLEASANTS

"Pleasants" her name, pleasant's her manner. When the time comes to laugh, Martha is right on the job, but as a rule she is "as quiet as a mouse." If you get her started talking on a certain subject (or rather person), she will talk for hours. Your friends at J. M. will always stand "pat" for you. Martha.

Patriotic Society. Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

MARY ADELINE PLEASANTS

Adeline is a true friend, an all-around good sport, and is always ready to help those in trouble. She has made many friends, while at John Marshall, by her winning ways, her sunny disposition, and her bright smile. We wish you the very best of luck in the future, Adeline!

TAZEWELL PEATROSS

School spirit and humor are the outstanding qualities of "Taz." A cheerful smile added to personal charm has gained him many friends in John Marshall, especially among the fairer sex. We've never heard what he intends to be, but 'tis thought engineering will be his vocation. May you succeed at college, "Taz," and make your mark in the world.

Patriotic Society.

MARGUERITE PENZER

When one thinks of Marguerite (and that is often), one calls to mind curls and a violin. The lovely hair has perhaps evoked almost as much praise thus far in her life as we like to prophesy her music will hereafter. She is quiet, gentle-voiced, and possesses a smile that doesn't wear off.

Orchestra. Girls' High School Club. Patriotic Society. Athletic Association.

VIRGINIA PEASELEY

To see "Boo" is to love her, because she is one of those girls who is always happy and ready to lend a hand. "Boo" was once accused of being lazy, but as she was too absent-minded to discuss the matter, the subject has gradually faded into the background. At any rate, she's a real girl, natural and unaffected; so what more could we say?

Athletic Association. Patriotic Society. Girls' High School Club.

FANNYE PASSAMANECK

Fannye, ever happy and true,
Always willing to joke with you;
Never a whim she's not willing to please;
Never a chance that she misses to tease.
Yes, she's the one that strikes straight to your heart—
Ever the friend you'll crave when you part.

BERNARD PARRISH

We shall not soon forget that September day when Parrish came into our midst. As the caterpillar under the warm rays of the spring sun is transformed into a beautiful butterfly, so has Parrish burst forth into a true "Marshallite." In him we see the making of great things, and are sure he will make good in his chosen profession.

ELIZABETH KATHERINE YOUNG

And now let us turn our attention to Miss Elizabeth Katherine Young. "Goog" is a born bluff—at least in the school room. How she does it we can't learn. We join in pronouncing her a good sport and a fine friend. Here's wishing her the success she deserves!

Patriotic Club. Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

MONCURE P. PATTISON

It hath been said, "A little child shall lead them," and in "Monnie" this is fulfilled. He is very popular, and his broad grin and ready joke find an eminent place in the hearts of his friends. Old J. M. will miss him, but as the mother fosters her child to higher heights, so John Marshall will Moncure.

Patriotic Club. Athletic Association. Record Staff. John Marshall Debating Club.

DOROTHY H. PAGE

Look out, girls, hold your beau,
Here comes "Dot," and she'll get him "sho"!

"Dot's" that tall, handsome Pep, who wears a red hat and a big red "H" on her sweater. Everyone knows her by her good looks and charming personality. Here's to your good luck and happiness, Dorothy.

Athletic Association. Pep Club. Girls' High School Club. Marshallite Staff.

ELIZABETH PATRICK

It is said that the best things come in small packages. This is certainly true about Bess. She is known for her good looks and Irish wit. She has won many friends at John Marshall, not mentioning her ability for making friends outside. Here's wishing you the best of luck and happiness.

Girl Reserves. Athletic Association.

JOSEPH C. PASSAMANECK

Have you ever noticed a tall lanky youth walking down the corridor? Well, that's Joe.

Besides being a dancer, Joe is extremely studious. But "'tis true, 'tis pity, and pity 'tis 'tis true," every time he attemps to concentrate, the little radio germ distracts him

Success to you, Joe!

MARGARET A. ROBINSON

"She's witty and awful keen,
Real bright, just right."

What more can be said? Yes, Margaret has winning ways, a sunny disposition, and a charming smile. She is a pal, a friend, and an all-'round good sport. An air of happiness always hovers about her. One is indeed fortunate to cultivate her friendship, for she is always willing to assist her friends, who wish her all the success in life.

Girls' High School Club.

GEORGE RYDER

George possesses a big bass voice and a big heart. He says little, but you know "actions speak louder than words." Brilliant, did you say? Well, his name never heads the list, but neither is it at the other end. Here's luck to you, George, and may you succeed in your future career as you did at John Marshall.

THELMA LOUISE REYNOLDS

Thelma is very wise, indeed, in not allowing the opposite sex to interfere with her success as an A1 student, but we can't say where she learned to "shake such a wicked foot."

Oh, Thelma's rare,
And Thelma's fair,
And this is how to please her:
A perfect report, for that's her forte,
And no cadets to tease her.

HERMAN M. ROTH

"Small in stature, but great in wisdom."

Herman is small and does not take up much space at John Marshall, but if you are in doubt about a lesson, find Herman.

For four years Herman has followed the path of former "sharks," and it can easily be predicted that success awaits him in his future business life.

Athletic Association. Cadet Corps.

MARY PEYTON RUCKER

The beautiful name of "Mary" has been loved and admired throughout ages, and it seems as if the maiden upon whom it is bestowed possesses also the charm of simplicity. "So be it with our Mary." Very calm and dignified she seems, but in a group of happy boys and girls she is indeed the merriest of them all. We predict a very successful future for you, Mary.

Athletic Association.

LIBBIE ROMM

Have you ever seen Libbie without a jolly smile? Ever since she entered John Marshall, she has been loved because of her sunny disposition and her pleasing personality. Here's wishing success and happiness to a lovable girl!

WELFORD WHITE

White and blue! His name is "White," and he is a Marshallite true blue. As right guard on the football team, he helped carry it to victory more than once. If you hold your friends as you did the old J. M. line, Welford, your future is assured.

ANNIE RICHARDSON

Quiet and unassuming in demeanor is Anne. She is a loyal friend, and is always willing to help others. May you have the happiness you deserve, Annie.

Athletic Association.

ARLIE RICHARDS

This charming girl of seventeen summers is beloved and admired by all who know her. Her gentle, unassuming manner, sweet disposition, and irresistible smile have won for her a warm spot in the hearts of her friends. Her unselfish ways and untiring energy will win her success wherever her lot may be cast.

VIRGINIA REDFORD

If ever you are in need of a friend, look up Virginia, otherwise known as "Sweetie." By her winning ways and charming personality she has won a host of friends in John Marshall who will never forget her. Although we do not know what career she will choose, we wish her success in whatever she may undertake.

Athletic Association.

WILLIAM RICHARDSON

Among those who will be most missed at J. M. is "Bill." If he carries the vim through life that he puts in football and other athletics, we know his success will be a record-breaker. But behind Bill's athletic abilities lurk a sense of humor and a touch of the human that make him one of the school's most popular boys.

Assistant Manager of Football, '21.
Manager of Baseball, '23.
Football Team, '22.

RUTH E. RADMAN

"Oh, wad some power the giftie gie us,
To see oursilves as ithers see us."

This does not apply to Ruth, for if she could "see hersilf as ithers see her" there would be a severe case of "swell-head" at J. M. H. S.

"Rufus" is a jolly, good natured being, fairly scintillating with wit. Above all, she is a loyal Marshallite.

HERMAN RICHARDSON

If you should see a tall "cake-eater" wandering aimlessly about the halls, you may rest assured 'tis Herman. Gee! but he can dance! Ask any of the girls, and they'll shower you with such expressions as: "marvelous!"—"wonderful!" and the like. He has made a host of friends at John Marshall, who all join in wishing him the best o' luck.

GLADYS REAMS

Large eyes of rich, dark brown,
Hair of raven hue—
One who is a grand old sport,
Gladys, this is you.

We wish for you a great career
As o'er life's sea you glide,
With thrilling, great adventures,
And success whate'er betide.

Then when at last you settle down
In matrimonial ease,
May you a partner good have found,
And do just as you please.

Girls' High School Club.

BENJAMIN WATKINS RAWLES, JR.

Ben is one of those fellows that the Senior class could not dispense with. As business manager of the Record, he can't be beat; as a friend, his popularity speaks for itself. He has made a fine record in his classes as well as in the Cadet Corps. Keep up the good work, Ben!

Secretary Athletic Association. Marshallite Staff. Business Manager Record. First Lieutenant and Adjutant Cadet Corps. Patriotic Society. John Marshall Debating Club. Class Treasurer, '21.

JESSIE BELLE RICE

If you know a good joke, you always want to tell it to Jessie Belle. When you've heard her laugh—well, you just wish you knew another!

Sport? Well, she's been seen (and heard) at all of the games of the season. One thing we cannot understand is her frequent visits to Blackstone. Now, we wonder why?

Athletic Association. Patriotic Society.

RUTH ROSENTHAL

Ruth is quaintly original and likes to provoke discussion by disagreeing with you. No, I would not call her stubborn or mulish—just fond of argument for argument's sake.

You should be a lawyer, Ruth.

CLYDE ROWLETT

What would the world be without laughter? Ask Clyde's friends what their classes would be without her happy smiles. Not only her pleasant personality but her great ability make all who are fortunate enough to know her appreciate her friendship.

Athletic Association.

COLEMAN ROBINS

Motto: "Oh, how I hate to get up in the morning!"

Coleman is a draughtsman, you probably know,
Just the kind who is going to show
The world that it will always have access
To blueprints by the very best.
So give him a triangle and a square
To plan his castles in the air.

ALBERT B. RADMAN

"I wish I was a little rock, a-settin' on a hill,
A-doin' nothin' all day long, but just a-settin' still."

Albert says, "Them's my sentiments," and we're inclined to agree with him, judging from his conduct in French class. In spite of his weakness, however, he has won many friends at John Marshall through his jolly disposition and pleasing personality.

Athletic Association.

ELIZABETH ROWZIE

Fun, frolic, foolishness—that's "Liz"—an excellent student and a great old pal. If you hear someone talking in an animated voice and laughing gaily, that's she. Among her hobbies are Public Speaking and Art. Elizabeth's clever wit and sunny disposition will leave forever the sweetest memory of her in the hearts of her classmates.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

CLARA SPEARS SADLER

A good old sport, a steadfast friend and "the ace of trumps" is Clara. If you are looking for a good time or are in need of a real friend, just hunt her up. She never fails. Her classmates are sorry to give her up, but wish her the best future success and happiness!

MACON C. SAMMONS

Who doesn't know Macon with his bright blue eyes and a good word for everybody? He may be a bit fidgety in classes (so Miss Engelberg says), yet he is a fine student and shows school spirit and interest in John Marshall activities. Well, Macon, old boy, here's a rather superfluous wish for luck in whatever you do in life, for we know that you'll do it well.

Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

EVELYN SANDERS

"Worry and I have never met." From these words of Evelyn, you can readily perceive her carefree nature. She puts more life into the Pep Club than any other one member. Always ready to lend a helping hand, vivacious, enthusiastic, and sympathetic, Evelyn will indeed be missed when she leaves her Alma Mater.

GEORGE E. SCHRAUDT, JR.

Have you ever seen a "tow-headed" lad of longitudinal dimensions, carrying a tan brief-case in the halls of J. M.? That's George.

He is one of those fellows who spends a great part of his spare time toying with the radio; in fact, he gains so much knowledge from the ether that studying is almost unnecessary with him.

Sergeant, Cadet Corps.
Athletic Association.

MILDRED SAVAGE

Mildred is an excellent type of a true Marshallite. She is popular not only with the boys but with everybody. It is a difficult task to bestow new praise upon Mildred, because they are all exhausted. Best of luck, Mildred!

Athletic Association.

MARY SCHULTZ

Mary goes about her business, unassumingly, but maintains her position. To appreciate her one must know her. Friendliness and loyalty are her principal virtues. We extend to a true Marshallite our best wishes as she enters a life of service.

JAMES W. SHAW, Jr.

James is that tall, bashful-looking fellow you see around school. Looks are deceiving, however, for he isn't bashful at all, and he's lots of fun when you get him started. Recently he has developed a taste for flashy colors in the form of purple ties, green socks, etc., and we fear he's on the verge of becoming a "cake eater." However, we're for you, James!

Athletic Association.

LAURA VIRGINIA SHAWEN

Who is the tall blonde?—That's Virginia. Except to her intimate friends she appears rather shy and reserved. Her friends, however, admire her for her persistence and her ability to succeed in whatever she undertakes.

Athletic Association. Girls' High School Club.

LESLIE SHAW

The thing that goes the farthest towards making life worth while,
That costs the least and does the most, is just a pleasant smile.

Though "Mike" is rather modest, he blows his own horn (in the orchestra and the band). A good mixer and a good sport, he has won many friends in his four short years at John Marshall.

Cadet Corps. Athletic Association. Orchestra.

EUNICE SHEPPE

Eunice may seem outwardly shy, but "get her going" and she is a real sport. As for teaching Sunday-school, she has a way of her own that makes her quite popular!

We hope that you will meet your future tasks as successfully as you have at J. M. H. S.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

GARLAND SHORT

Behold the politician of the Senior Class! There is one thing in which Garland excels—talking. His tongue is a good example of perpetual motion. From morn 'til night the halls ring with his cheery greetings. School spirit and a happy sense of humor may be listed among his other good qualities. Best of luck, Garland!

Patriotic Society. Athletic Association.

GEORGIA SHERRY

"When lessons and pleasure clash,
Let lessons go to smash."

That's Georgia! One never sees her head bowed in deep study, but "she gets there" just the same. This small fault is easily overlooked when one knows her, for she is a genuine Marshallite and the best pal one could wish for.

Success and happiness is our wish for you, Georgia.

Athletic Association. Girls' High School Club.

EMILY SIMS

Emily is one of those pretty, quiet creatures who secures a firm place in our hearts before we realize it, and then causes us to wonder why we didn't know it before. She could be studious if she would, and we wish her all good luck.

KATHERINE SMITH

There are Katherines and Katherines the wide world o'er, but there's only one Katherine Perchy Smith. "King and Queen" couldn't hold her, so she danced into Richmond. You miss something if she's not among your list of friends. Here's to you, Katherine! May you always trip along as happily as you did at John Marshall.

PHYLLIS SMITH

All of us know and love Phyllis—the girl who is always the jolliest pal one could wish for. Just imagine the combination of lovely auburn hair and big blue eyes, and you have a good idea of Phyllis. She seems to possess an inexhaustible supply of "pep" and good humor, and with these traits her future is assured.

Pep Club. Athletic Association. Patriotic Society.

ALFRED DOUGLAS SMITH

Here is one who has walked through old J. M. with as much ease as anyone we know. He is a regular German professor, although Latin is said to be his favorite subject. He is frank and true, firm in what he believes to be right, independent, and thoroughly unselfish. We feel sure that the future holds great success for him.

Patriotic Society. Athletic Association. Orchestra. Corporal, Cadet Corps.

WINNIE SMITH

Many of the Smith Tribe have come and gone through the doors of John Marshall, but there is one who stands out from the rest because of her striking personality, great ability as a student, good humor, and thoughtfulness. This one is "Fannie," whose familiar face will be missed a great deal next year.

MERCER SMITH

Mercer has great conversational abilities. He is always talking to some one, generally the girls. We do not know which of his subjects he prefers—probably history. Mercer is interested in sports and takes an active part in school athletics.

Here's wishing him the best o' luck!

Track '22. Athletic Association. Annual Staff.

ROBERTA ISABEL SMITH

At "Polly's" many powers and great
We gasp with awe and unbelief,
And sing with joy, for she, by fate,
Is our "commanderess"-in-chief.
In work and in our playing, too,
She takes the main and leading parts,
And still, when Senior days are through,
She'll be enthroned within our hearts.

Vice-President, Athletic Association. President, Girls' High School Club. Associate Editor, Record. Editor-in-Chief, Marshallite. Class Reporter '20, '22.

ANDREW SMITHER

To try to describe Andrew to any present day Marshallite would be superfluous. In order that future Marshallites may have a permanent record of his achievements, we would state that his life as a student at John Marshall has been busy, even to this present day. May success crown his every effort is our wish as he goes forth from school.

Patriotic Society. Record Staff. Athletic Association.

MARJORIE McCORKLE SNOW

"She speaks, behaves, and acts just as she wants to."

The triumphs achieved by the subject of this sketch soar beyond all mere enumeration. They are no more to be counted than the bricks in our school building, but they all fit together to make the structure of her extraordinary reputation, the foundation of which is her own daring personality.

Girls' High School Club. Patriotic Society. Athletic Association.

THOMAS BARTON SMOOT

Barton is a faithful Senior and a true blue Marshallite. He could easily be used as a model for an editorial on courtesy. We know he'll have success always.

Athletic Association. Patriotic Club. Cadet Corps.

ETHEL L. SOMAN

Ethel's charming personality and willingness to help have endeared her to all who have the pleasure of knowing her. Although not overstudious, her teachers are very often influenced, by her ready smile, to give her a good mark. There is also a serious side to her nature, which shows her determination to succeed in whatever she undertakes. Good luck to you, Ethel.

JENNIE SPECTRE

Cheerful, helpful, and agreeable—these words characterize Jennie. In addition to these admirable qualities, she is a good student. We all wish Jennie success in whatever she may undertake.

Athletic Association.

JOSEPHINE M. SMYTH

This little girl with very light hair
Goes through the world without a care.

Yes, "without a care" explains "Jo's" happy disposition and ready laughter.

Here's wishing you, Jo, old dear, the best of all things good.

Patriotic Club.

CHARLES CLIFTON SQUIRE

No one has ever become acquainted with "Clif" without receiving a lasting impression of his friendship, generosity, and genuineness of character. Although he has not entered the social whirl at J. M., we have almost conclusive proof that his heart is set on a certain one of the fair sex in Highland Park.

He has the best wishes of us all, and we shall watch his future with interest.

REBECCA ST. CLAIR

Rebecca St. Clair
Is a dear little maid,
But she'll be a reporter
I'm greatly afraid.

I've been trying to rhyme
All the things she can do,
But I can't very well,
So I leave it to you.

She's a wonder is Becky—
That's why she's so fine.
She can reel off the Latin stuff
Line after line.

Athletic Association. Patriotic Society. Girls' High School Club.

JOE STAPLES

Who is that dark-haired "Sheik?" Surely you know him. Besides being a good dancer, Joe seems to have the gift of making friends, especially among the fair sex. We have not heard what Joe expects to be, but we're sure of his making a great success in whatever he attempts.

Athletic Association. Patriotic Society.

VIOLA STEWART

Take the key called "accommodating," turn the lock of unselfishness, and enter Viola's disposition. There you will find earnestness of purpose, consistency in effort, and true friendship. Your friends at John Marshall drink to your health, happiness, and success, Viola.

CATHERINE REED STRANGE

"We saw her dreaming, but we saw not half
The charms her downcast modesty concealed."

Chief characteristics: Silence and faithfulness.

Silent, thoughtful, and reserved; faithful to every duty and honest in every aim is Catherine. To understand her one must know her well, for she believes in making friends slowly but surely.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

ROY SUTTON

We have with us today "Sutty"—star athlete and the best natured boy in school.

A great favorite with the boys on account of his work in athletics, and the girls for his dancing, Roy has established for himself a firm place in the hearts of the '23 class. His jokes and ever present grin will surely be missed. Good luck, "Sutty"! and "keep smiling."

Baseball '21, '22, '23. Assistant Manager, Baseball '22. Manager, Football '22. Basketball '21-'22; Captain '22-'23 Athletic Association.

MILDRED STONE

Small in body, big in mind, and a good student—behold Mildred! One of the "peppiest" and one of the most diminutive members of the Senior class. The Class of '23 will always remember her for the clever school notes she has written for the "Record" during this past year. We all know she will make her way through college as she did at High School.

Fourth Vice-President, Patriotic Society. Corresponding Secretary, Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association. Record Staff.

STEPHEN C. SUTTON

"Steve's" cheerful disposition has won for him many friends. Who can remember when he wasn't willing to do someone a favor? We hate to lose you, "Steve," but hope your life will be as successful in later years as it has been at J. M. H. S. Here's wishing you luck!

Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

LOUISE STROTHER

Louise has never in all her school days learned the meaning of the word "fail." When she attempts a thing, she does it and does it well. However, a lesson has never kept Louise from a frolic. Our best wish to you is that you may keep your own heart as securely as you possess the hearts of others. Louise has caused many a manly heart to "miss a beat."

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

HUNTER SWINK

He hails from the hills of West Virginia where 'tis said that children cut their teeth on six shooters and that the only beverage to be had is moonshine. When a skirt appears, you should see him! He can't talk, gets all left-handed, and feels miserable. Hunter, overcome this weakness, and success is yours.

Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

MARY SUMROW

Obviously Mary does not believe that silence is golden, but uses instead her conversational gifts for the pleasure and enjoyment of her friends. To be candidly truthful, however, we admit the fact that we are rather glad she does not live according to this old adage. John Marshall is loth to lose you, Mary.

Girls' High School Club. Patriotic Society. Athletic Association.

BESSIE SUPRANER

Bessie is light-hearted and full of laughter. She is generally popular. Her record as a student is creditable. Here's a wish for her future success.

RALPH SWOPE

A good student, a diligent worker, a shining light in all his classes is Ralph. He actually thinks chemistry is a "cinch"! We trust that his fertile brain will do much for the advancement of medical science.

EVELYN FANNETTA SYDNOR

Evelyn is that lovable little girl with those naughty brown eyes and a mischievous smile on her face. She has won a place in the hearts of many while at J. M. H. S. We part with you reluctantly, Evelyn, but we hope your college career will be as successful as that of John Marshall.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

SEARS TAYLOR

This quiet lad has at last battled his way to the goal of every "Rat": graduation. His reward is well earned. His was not an easy path, but by hard work and much burning of the midnight oil, he has made good. Let us not forget his example, and also let us wish him as great success in the future as in the past

MARGARET TALLEY

When we find something particularly pleasing to us, I think the common tendency is to hold on to it with all one's strength. That's the way a whole lot of us are going to feel in June when "Marnch" leaves John Marsha.l. She's an all-around good sport, always ready for a jolly time, and has many faithful followers and dear friends.

MARIE TATE

A good disposition, a cheerful personality, pleasing individuality, and true friendship combined make Marie. Marie!—we need say no more, for her many friends agree that this one word means volumes. John Marshall wishes for you all the happiness and prosperity possible in the future, fellow-classmate.

DOROTHY TAYLOR

A lovable disposition and a winning way, spiced with delicious wit, has won Dorothy a tender spot in the hearts of her fellow Marshallites. Here's wishing you the fulfilment of all of your desires and ambitions.

Athletic Association.

ROBERT H. THOMAS

"I love the cows and chickens, but—."

"Hayseed" leaves his beloved corn fields long enough to attend John Marshall several hours each day. But don't let that discourage you, Robert. Remember that some of the best men of your country came from the "Sticks." "Hitch your wagon to a star," and "go to it" with the best wishes of J. M.

MARY LOUISE TAYLOR

Everyone who meets Louise loves her, for how can he help it? With her winning smile and gentle manner she will always get along in the world. But this is not all. Her quick sense of humor, backed by true human sympathy, will carry her over the hard places. The Marshallites of '23 wish her lasting success and happiness!

MAURY WELDON THOMPSON

Weldon is the kind of boy we all like without especially knowing why. His ability to tackle any problem, his excellent school spirit, his indefatigable efforts in the Cadet Corps, and his popularity with both sexes, make us all admire him. It looks as though he will be a lawyer, as he seldom loses an argument. We are expecting great things of you, Weldon, and wish you lots of success.

FLORENCE TAYLOR

Of course you all know Florence—the bright, vivacious, blue-eyed senior. Perhaps you didn't know her name, but what's in a name? It's the owner that counts, and Florence has "counted" three years in J. M. H. S.

We wish you good luck and hope there is a happy, prosperous future in store for you.

Athletic Association.

LUNA THOMPSON
LOIS THOMPSON

"United we stand, divided we fall."

That's Luna and Lois, for you always see them together. "Hate me, hate my sister," is their motto; and I warn you all not to try it. They have a host of friends in old John Marshall and will be greatly missed next year.

Athletic Association. Girls' High School Club.

VIRGINIA THOMPSON

"Ginna" is what everyone would call "an honest-to-goodness pal." She has plenty of pep and a very pleasant disposition; she is a good sport and an ever-willing helper.

Have we ever seen her without a smile? That's why she has so many friends in John Marshall.

Athletic Association.

MARGARET THOMSON

Here's to the girl with the smiling face,
A friendly air and a winsome grace.
She's a jolly good sport in the '23 class,
And on her studies she's sure to pass.
Here's hoping success and happiness will be yours always,
And may tender memories cling to your John Marshall days.

HUGH THOMPSON

It is quite apparent that Hugh is not a lady's man. He exerts all of his energy on his test papers. Most of his studies he tackles with a successful hand, but a master is he in mathematics. A great deal of school spirit is exhibited in his love for athletics, and a great deal of popularity is shown by his easily acquired host of friends.

Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

DOROTHY ELIZABETH TILLER

Dorothy is nimble;
Dorothy is quick;
Now watch her jump over the candlestick.

If you want to see how really nimble she is, watch her on the tennis court. But seriously, Dot is an all-'round likable girl in every respect. As a friend she is one of the best to be found Here's wishing her great success in her career as a teacher.

WARREN TUCKER

If silence signifies wisdom, our friend "Little Tommy Tucker" is a twentieth century Solomon. When he does speak, look out! for there is sure to be some very useful information given.

Warren has plenty of school spirit, and though his name is not among the letter men, he backs his teams with his full support.

Athletic Association.

ETTA TILLER

A roguish smile, a jaunty air,
Clear gray eyes, a head of curly hair,
Ready to help and willing to do,
Friendly with all and intimate with few,
Active in Sunday-school and B. Y. P. U.—
These should win success for you.

ELIZABETH TIMBERLAKE

Elizabeth, who always has a pleasant smile for everyone she knows, has by this same smile won a soft place in the hearts of her fellow-Marshallites.

We haven't heard which college she will enter next year, but our best wishes for her success and happiness go with her.

Athletic Association.

WILLIAM E. TOMLINSON

William's what teachers all call him,
But Billy sounds better to us;
He is always so pleasant and courteous—
A fellow that each may well trust.
He is one who about nothing worries,
But in studies he surely is smart!
We know that we deeply shall miss you
When from us you soon shall depart.

Athletic Association. Cadet Corps. Orchestra.

ELDA TRAFIERI

This lady needs no introduction to us; her charm and intellect make her as popular with the faculty as with the students. With her dark hair and eyes, she bears a strange resemblance to some fair senorita. Elda is always smiling and ready to lend a helping hand. Her Alma Mater predicts for her a bright and successful future.

JOSEPH TURNER

In September, 1920, this budding young genius came to John Marshall and became a lowly rat. Now, after three years, he is leaving us. During his stay at John Marshall, he has made many friends by his happy-go-lucky, joyous nature, and his readiness for a good time. We wish him as much success in after life as he has had at John Marshall.

Athletic Association. Cadet Corps.

FRANCES THORNTON

Shakespeare once said, "What's in a name?" But when you hear Frances' name, it recalls her wholesome, dependable and lovable traits.

We wish you the best of success, and may fortune smile upon you:

So here's to you, Frances,
With your dimple and your smile.
May you go through life
Making life worth while.

Girls' High School Club.

R. ANNE TREVILLIAN

Anne is noted for her joyful outlook on everything. By her charming personality she manages to win the hearts of us all. Anne not only likes to dance, but she excels in the art. May the best of life be yours, Anne!

Patriotic Society. Athletic Association.

ALICE TREVVETT

Some people seem to possess the quality of going through life without a care, and so it is with Alice. You never see her that she isn't smiling, and we wonder just how she manages it. She has great ability in oral composition, too, and who knows but what some day John Marshall will produce a famous Congresswoman or lawyer? Here's wishing you luck, Alice.

Athletic Association.

EDITH TREVVETT

Edith has been one of our number for years, and her unfailing good humor and perseverance are always dependable whether the matter on hand be driving a Dodge or struggling with unruly French verbs. May she steer her course through life as cleverly as she does her car over the rough highways and byways of the country.

Athletic Association.

EUGENE W. TURNER

With his music, wit, and good fellowship, Eugene will continue to charm the world as he has charmed the class of '23. And that is the best that we can wish for him.

Some day we shall be glad we knew him.

Record Staff. Marshallite Staff. Athletic Association.

NINA TREVVETT

Nina is true blue, a devoted friend and a good pal. She is very studious, and possesses a wit, sincerity, and frankness which have won for her a host of friends.

Athletic Association. Girls' High School Club.

KATHERINE THROCKMORTON

Add to attractiveness and brains an unusual charm of personality and you have Katherine. She is a good student and the best of pals.

May your college career be as successful as your years at John Marshall have been.

ALICE BERRY TYLER

Bubbling over with mischief—that's Alice. Oh, yes, she looks studious, too, when she puts on those big glasses, and looks are not always deceiving. Her friendly disposition has won for her many friends who hate to see her leave old John Marshall.

Reporter, Girls' High School Club. Patriotic Society. Athletic Association.

NEVILLE TUCK

We all know her for kindness and hospitality to others. Once her friend, always her friend. Neville has a strongly marked individuality, and her opinions are her own, regardless of what others may think. Best of luck always is our wish for you!

JAMES TYSON

In strolling through the corridors, if you hear a "Hi there you!" why right away you ought to know that's Jimmie—happy-go-lucky Jimmie.

He's quite popular with the boys and girls, but that's no fault of theirs, for how can one help but like such an all-'round friend as Jim?

Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

RUTH A. TYLER

Not too sad, not too gay,
But a real good sport in a real good way.

Ruth is the girl who is always willing to help you in any way she can. The picture opposite may show her appearance but not her pleasing personality J. M. wishes success and happiness to you in the future.

LILLIAN UNGER

"Airy, fairy Lillian" Disappointed you'll be, however, if you expect her mentality to be in proportion to her size. What she goes for she gets. Our wish is that she may always win every goal which she has in sight.

Girls' High School Club. Athletic Association.

GLADYS VADEN

"She's pretty to walk with, witty to talk with, and pleasant to think of." Her heart's content only when in mischief, but needless to say everybody likes her. If wit were wisdom—ye gods! another Solomon.

Girls' High School Club.

JAMES THOMAS WALKER, Jr.

Though his quiet mien has barred many of us from his acquaintance, we who have been fortunate enough to be his associates have found him a real friend and true Marshallite. We look for great achievements from our future electrical engineer, which will match those of his predecessors, and do honor to his Alma Mater.

Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

WILLIAM WELSH

Sandy hair, gray eyes—that's William. Any student of Spanish will know him as one of Miss Lavinder's favorites. Billy will be greatly missed when he leaves, and to fill his place will indeed be hard. Here's to you, William! May success always be yours.

Cadet Corps.

FRED W. WENZEL

This "cotton-headed" lad is none other than Frederick W. Wenzel, familiarly known as "Fred." "Fred" is usually "seen and not heard." He is an A-1 student, and has made a lasting impression on the faculty and students alike.

All his friends are sure he will set a mark for future Marshallites.

Athletic Association. Corporal, Band. Patriotic Club.

ALENE WALKER

You must admit that the Class of '23 has reason to be proud. Here's still another record. Alene has missed the roll of honor only once since entering these stately portals! We can't explain how she does it, except that she studies hard and takes her work seriously and quietly, as she wisely does everything in her life.

Girls' High School Club. Patriotic Club. Athletic Association.

MARIE WALZ

Would that this picture could portray the golden hue of Marie's hair, the grey of her eyes, and her fair complexion! However, it would be even better could it depict her personality. She has endeared herself to all by her sweet disposition and won our admiration by her musical ability. She has left behind such a record that the success of her future life is assured.

Patriotic Society. Athletic Association.

VAN DYKE WEST

Behold the stalwart young man, who won dramatic fame as Lord Carnal in "To Have and To Hold." He has loyally supported school organizations, and his friendship is ever to be cherished by his classmates.

In scientific fields "Dyke" has shown unusual possibilities. May he develop into a genius.

Patriotic Club. Athletic Association. Sergeant, Cadet Corps.

JANICE WELLS

If someone whispers, "Who is that attractive girl?" you may be sure that she is no other than "Jap," our friend. Her sunny disposition and charming smile have won the love of many To see her makes one's heart go "pit-a-pat." Janice, here's wishing you the best of success.

Athletic Association. Patriotic Club.

BENJAMIN H. WEST

"O, Ben!"—Loud and deep voices, small and soft voices echo this name at all hours of the day (possibly longer). But through it all he continues to be the same unaffected Ben. He's about the jolliest fellow you could find, and we'll miss him when he leaves to seek his fortune elsewhere.

Sergeant, Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

BERTHA WIESMANN

Here's to Bertha with her laughing blue eyes and sunny smile. Her friends (and they are many) wish her the best of luck and hope that she will achieve as much success in the future as she has at old John Marshall.

MARCELLUS E. WRIGHT, Jr.

Behold! the ladies' man! Should you hear the girls whispering, "Here he comes," you'll know that Marcellus is approaching. Occasionally he takes a notion to study, but he evidently believes in "Ladies First." Marcellus has expressed his intention of entering the University of Pennsylvania next fall. We hate to see him leave, but he has our best wishes for a most successful career.

Corporal, Cadet Corps. Marshallite Staff. Athletic Association.

ELSIE WEILL

Her nick name is "Frenchy," and there you have Elsie Weill. Have you ever heard her speak French? Her accent is truly remarkable and one that the French students can but admire. Who will deny that she has an air delightfully Parisian? If she will pronounce it, we'll say with all our hearts, "Bon voyage."

JOHN D. WHITEHURST

John, more familiarly known as "Johnnie," is very popular with both sexes. His pleasing personality is clearly indicated by the constant smile that illumines his countenance. He is very jovial, and his laugh has become famous among us. Latin and geometry cause John no fear, for he is very brainy.

Athletic Association. Patriotic Society. Record Staff. Assistant Business Manager, Marshallite. Advertising Manager, Marshallite.

MADELINE WILLIAMS

"A friend in need is a friend indeed"—that's Madeline, our little nurse. Madeline is always "there," willing to help. She frolics with the bright things of life, throwing them back with carefree smiles, of which she keeps a share for everyone. Best o' luck, old pal!

PHILIP WHITFIELD

Philip's nature is divided into three parts: seriousness, fun, and more fun! No one can be around Philip in a dull humor; he drives it all away.

We all wish you success and a life as free from care as that at J. M. H. S.

DUDLEY WILKINSON

On seeing "Dud" one is forced to ask who the studious looking boy is, and his looks are not deceptive. It is with regret that we bid him good-bye, and we wish him much success.

LUCY COLEMAN WILLIAMS

Brilliant in wit, charming in manner, eloquent of pen, admired now for her personality and remembered later through the sterling quality of her work is Lucy.

Writing and talking both knit in one.
Take either from me, and my life is done.

Annual Staff. Record Staff.
Athletic Association.

G. BEVERLEY WILLIAMS, JR
("BEVO")

If popularity were money, Beverley would be a millionaire. His pleasing personality has won for him a host of friends at John Marshall.

As a friend he is invaluable. May success crown his future efforts as consistently as it has his present.

MARGARET WILLIAMS

Here we have studious Margaret, a modest yet most genial young lady. She is very conscientious and an ever true friend to the forlorn. She may be said to be of the genuine Emersonian type—true, self-reliant, optimistic, and a seeker after the higher and nobler things of life. May her integrity be bountifully rewarded.

Athletic Association.

SALLY WINFREY

Sally is so quiet that we hardly know when she is around, but she often stuns us with her knowledge. We feel ourselves falling swiftly to the shades below, as she reads the "Aeneid" so fast we can hardly keep up.

We predict a successful college career with many glowing sparks left on the path behind.

Annual Staff. Class Prophet.

ENNION S. WILLIAMS

The popularity of Ennion cannot be judged by the volume of his speech; yet, because of his quiet, easy-going manner, he has won many friends among us. Ennion is one of those courageous souls who has tackled Latin and has held on to it. We are sure that his future M. D. career will be a success.

Cadet Corps. Athletic Association. Record Staff. Marshallite Staff.

GOLDIE WOLF

Happy-go-lucky and full of fun,
Goldie Wolf can't be outdone.
She's ever delightful
And a wonderful friend;
Of her jokes and her spirit
There is no end.

So, Goldie, here's wishing you much success as you go your way quite undisturbed, letting the world rush by.

THOMAS WILLIAMS

Thomas has passed four very successful years in our midst. His good looks and love for sports have won for him quite a high degree of popularity. Furthermore, we feel that his teachers are satisfied that his knowledge has been deepened by the "digging" he has done. He will leave behind him friends both among the student-body and the faculty.

GARNETT WINGFIELD

Garnett may have a surprisingly small body, but he has a surprisingly large mind. Often the very word you think he doesn't know will pop right out of his mouth and astound you. He is quiet and unassuming in his manners. However, he is so full of the unexpected that there is a probability that some day he will burst forth into a second Patrick Henry.

Athletic Association.

LOUISE ANNE WHEELER

"I never saw eyes so bright
And yet so soft as hers."

Louise is one of those little things that make one's school life endurable. She has won a big place in our hearts, and those who do not number her among their friends may count it a loss.

We wish you, Louise, success in whatever you undertake.

LUCY WHITE

Who is Lucy White? You ought to know her because she's everybody's friend. Yes, Lucy is ambitious, capable, and attractive. She will always succeed because she has a likable personality. Here's to you, Lucy, and we hope you'll find as many "four leaf clovers" as you have friends at J. M.

WINSTON WOOD

Winston is that red-cheeked cadet who usually gets his Latin, and who gets it without the lift of a "pony." This fact reveals a little of his personality—ability and courage. Though he seems a little shy at facing a crowd, we know he is by no means afraid of the world. His obliging nature will serve him well.

Athletic Association. Cadet Corps.

ARLINE WORCHESTER

In school a quiet little miss; among her friends a source of fun-greetings from Arline. We regret that we didn't know her sooner, but we wish her success anyhow.

SUTTON WOODSON

Most of us know that Sutton is a first sergeant of the Cadet Corps. However, some of his affection seems to have been weaned away from the school militia, since he is also a devoted lover of jazz. We extend to him our best wishes for college, where he next aspires to go.

Cadet Corps. Athletic Association.

EMILY WRENN WOOD

If you would have a sparkling good time, page Emily. She grins, she smiles, she laughs, and so do we. She is a very busy person, but always has time for a football game.

May she always be able to laugh over the rough spots in the highway of life.

Athletic Association. Patriotic Society.

CLIFFORD WOODWARD

To meet him in a crowd is to be but slightly impressed. To know him as a friend is, indeed, a privilege. "Cliff's" one short-coming is his silence. He doesn't have much to say to his casual acquaintance, but just hear him among his friends.

Here's wishing you great success in life, "Cliff," and may your three-score years and ten be bountiful.

Athletic Association.

LOUISE ALLEN WRIGHT

A good sport, a jolly optimistic companion, and the kind of friend one likes to have. What more need we say? Although Louise seems to study very little, she is a good pupil. She has made many friends since she came to J. M. H. S. four years ago, and it is with real reluctance that we see her leave. However, we wish her every success at Westhampton.

Athletic Association.

EDGAR WOODWARD

Enter "Eckie," once a friend a'ways a friend. Besides being a good (?) student he is one of the illustrious band of "Cakes" that attend J. M.

When it comes to basketball, "Eckie" is "short but snappy." Although small in size, his departure will leave a b'g vacancy in John Marshall.

First Sergeant, Cadet Corps. Athletic Association. Basketball Team '22 Basketball Team '23.

JEAN WRIGHT

"To know her is to love her," is true of this sincere, congenial pal. Her great success in John Marshall was due to her unusual amb'tion and persever:nce. She has won many friends by that attractive smile and ever-readiness to help another. May you ever reap success in your future ca-eer, Jean, and win the very best in life.

Louise Wright

Cecil me Wright

CECILINE WRIGHT

"Grace was in her manner, heaven in her eye;
In every gesture dignity and love."

This is Ceciline, the demure little maid who came to us in her junior year. She has those sterling characteristics of seriousness, stability, and patience which we hope may continue to prove valuable in her future career.

Memory's Tie

We've come to a fork in the road, friend,
A fork in the road of life,
And many the paths to the journey's end,
And mingled the joy and the strife.

But ever a common memory, friend,
Links each of us to each,
For the thought of Alma Mater
Makes little of every breach.

E'en though our paths be apart, friend,
And many the storms to weather,
Remember and bear in mind, friend,
We came to the fork together.

And sometimes in our thoughts, friend,
Let's journey that road again—
The road that was happy to yonder bend—
The road that was free from pain.

Down from its dusty perch, friend,
Our Marshallite let us take,
And live its pages over, friend,
And the days that memories make.

On ever in our journey, friend,
Be it one of quiet or fame,
Let us honor old John Marshall,
And revere her sacred name.

MINNIE R. PHAUP, '23

The MARSHALLITE

Vocational Machine Department

THIS department, although comparatively new to our school, is fast becoming recognized as an essential factor in our great educational system. The department is conducted in accordance with the Smith-Hughes Act, which was passed by our National Congress for the promotion of Vocational Education, the object being to train men for the industries.

Pupils in this department spend three hours each day in practical Machine Shop work, three hours in Mechanical Drawing, Machine Science, Applied (Shop) Mathematics, and English. When the pupil has completed this course, he should be qualified to enter either Machine or Drafting Work.

The students have designed and completed working drawings for three large engine lathes of different types, weighing about three thousand pounds each. One of these has been completed and is in operation in our shop. The second will be completed by June of this year. Other work, such as motor frames, presses, one hundred wood vises for the Manual Training Department of the school have been completed also.

About 70 per cent of the pupils finishing this course enter the industries, either in the shop or drafting work, the compensation and prospect of advancement being far in excess of that of the untrained boy entering the same industry. We are confident that the two years spent in this work will be a great asset to each member of our class, as we have learned to work with our heads as well as with our hands. We have eleven boys completing the course this year:

LAMB, FRANK ("Sheep")

He laughs at the good,
He laughs at the bad,
He laughs at the funny,
He laughs at the sad.

CLEMENTS, PRESTON ("Ikey")

"Ikey" carries a roll the size of a tank;
For the pupils of the class he is a bank.

MCNAMEE, EDWARD ("Mack")

Mack works hard in class and in shop,
His tongue sticking out like a washwoman's mop.

Machine Shop Class

Munson, John ("Larry Semon")

"Larry's" sweet smile causes every girl to tarry.

Jones, Frederick ("Chinch")

Freddie's pet aversion is black cats.
He is the humorist of the class.

Reynolds, James ("Callie")

Sing a song of sixpence;
Reynolds has his lunch,
Ten and twenty sandwiches tied in a bunch.

Council, Godwin ("Chink")

"Chink" is a great admirer of the feminine sex. But this is not the only thing to his credit. He is a steady worker, and always stands well in his classes.

Garrett, Roy ("Country")

This boy, who hails from Hewlett, Va., is the most popular of his class.

Leak, Willard ("Pete")

Besides being a good mechanic and draftsman, Willard is also interested in sports. Basketball is his particular fad, but baseball is a close second.

Leonard, Milton ("Mip")

You will always find Milton at the corner of Eighth and Clay at 12:45, watching for a chance to smile at a pretty girl or to get out of school bounds.

Jewell, Walter

Baseball is Walter's hobby, and we'll all have to admit that he is a regular "Jack Keefe."

Instructor Brown

Horace, our teacher, as everyone knows,
Is a very good sport,
As the old saying goes.
You should see him on Sunday
In his Overland FOUR,
Which is almost ready for the golden shore.

Instructor Cobb ("Scottie")

William, the good-natured Scotchman, has a good word for everybody until he gets on the war path. Then look out!

The MARSHALLITE

The Greater High School

THE first high school of which our fair city could boast began in rented rooms on Broad Street between Ninth and Tenth, with a student body of forty-nine and a faculty of three. This was in the year 1872, and before the year elapsed, the call came for larger and more efficient quarters.

On October 1, 1873, the first High School building, situated at 805 East Marshall Street, was opened with eight rooms and an assembly hall. The youth of Richmond, anxious to take advantage of even this meagre opportunity, crowded this institution of learning to such an extent that, when the enrollemnt was taken, it was found that the student body had increased from forty-nine to two hundred and seventy-four. This was the first step in the rapid growth of the high school.

This building was used as a high school for Richmond students for a bit over a quarter of a century. Notwithstanding its lack of proper equipment and conveniences, the "old school" is often recalled by some of the Alumni with deep affection. With the increasing enrollment, the School Board began renting rooms outside. The school occupied all available space in the High School building, the John Marshall House, and the old Jefferson Club.

New ideas were proposed, from time to time, for bettering the school, and many were adopted, notable among these being the addition of a Post-Graduate course, including pedagogical work (which was the germ of the City Normal School), a two-year business course, stenography and typewriting, and classes in cooking. Also the work of teachers was specialized. Previous to this, teachers taught any subjects assigned to them by the Principal. The course for all graduates was extended from two to four years, and requirements for teachers in high school established—a college degree and two years' successful experience.

All room being taxed to the utmost to accommodate the pupils, it was decided that a new building was the only solution to the problem, and ground was broken March, 1908. In 1909, although the building was still unfinished, pupils were transferred from the old building to what was then regarded as commodious quarters. Located on the premises of the country's most famed Chief Justice, it was deemed appropriate to name it after him, and accordingly it took the name of John Marshall High School. Growth of the school is again noted—1,500 students occupying the new building.

Another year saw the introduction of Manual Training for the boys and Domestic Science for the girls. A library was established and a librarian appointed. In 1912 the free text-book system was started, and Spanish added to the curriculum. The greatest aid to the pupils was given when the Elective course was put into operation. The Cadet Corps, Trade Courses, and a cafeteria have been added in the last decade.

With this rapid growth, is there any wonder that the school is constantly calling for additional room? When the advantages of these new departments began to be realized, it was necessary to invade the Administration Building in order to procure more room, and again the old Richmond High School was put into use. In fact, the enrollment became so large that the old problem of adequate space again became vital. There could be only one answer—a new building; but what was to be done with the pupils while it was being constructed? At last a solution was found. It was decided to put into operation a two-session day, the third and fourth year pupils attending from 8:20 to 12:00, and the first and second year pupils from 12:30 to 4:10. This plan was used during the entire construction period of the new building—the George Wythe Junior High School, a building so handsome in design and equipment as to justify the pride of every Richmonder. This school, opened in March, 1923, relieved John Marshall of its heavy burden by taking care of the first and second year pupils. In other words, the afternoon school was transferred to George Wythe, and the old custom of all-day school was resumed.

Of special interest and pride to every Marshallite is the handsome new gymnasium of the George Wythe School, with its magnificent equipment, which is to be used jointly by the two schools. With the acquisition of this new building Richmond has now a high school system that equals any in the South.

The Flight

Open the cage and flown the swallow;
  Gone are the red-breasted robin and wren;
Larks in the wild young night are winging;
Orioles throbbing with joy are singing;
Thrushes arise and, fluttering, follow,
  Free from the gilded prison again.

We are the soarers, unbarred, unrestrained,
  Leaving the home of our learning and youth,
    Leaving with yearning
    The home of our learning,
  The beautiful home of our learning and youth.
'Neath our fair pinions are mem'ries of pleasure
We share in, but count not, nor fathom, nor measure;
Mem'ries of sorrows, of triumphs attained,
Mem'ries of friendships—Oh, paramount treasure—
  The dawn of the meaning of honor and truth.

We are the soarers unclassed and unsingled,
In mutual love and in interests mingled;
  No anger has stirred the sweet peace of our breasts;
    The way is before us;
    Liberty o'er us;
  Glory or shame on the goal ever rests.
The flight is our own, and our wills shall direct it;
With God lies the power to defend and protect it—
  And fate on the goal ever rests.

As we are hovering, fresh for the journey,
  Shall we so early forget and depart?
Sever th' invisible cord that encircles
  And shriek through the night with a maniac heart?
Shall we on ill-aimed pinions descending
  Dip to the foam of an opal sea wave?
While in the lure of the spray we are bending,
Mischief with ocean's gay beauty is blending,
And into the depths of the waters is sending
  The birds to a purple and billowy grave.

Let us fly to the stars together,
  Perch on the tip of the crescented moon,
Rock in the silver cradle of heaven,
  Lulled by the sky-breezes' lingering tune,
  By the sky-breezes' tapering tune.

Class History

THE infants of 1919 came bringing an upturned horseshoe—symbol of "Good Luck," one end of which they nailed securely to the Annex—the abode of "Rats." What kind of a spike did they use? A double-edged one, for they chose Miss Mary C. Shine sponsor and selected an undying motto, "J. M. H. S. First and Last." Such judgment in youngsters argued well for the future, nor did Good Fortune ever fail to mark the path of learning. They thought that they were being shamefully treated when they had to drill, but it probably was for the best. To watch them squads "lefting" up and down the street was a sight for sore eyes, and the "Freshman Walk" became very popular. Mr. Harwood pronounced it the best Freshman class it had ever been his lot to observe.

After passing successfully the test of the Annex, they were granted entrance in the impressive building across the street—supreme privilege of a Sophomore. How could this generosity best be repaid? They decided on study and became models by which other seekers after wisdom might be guided. With the beginning of the February term came the end of that much-hated drill period, and everyone went around with a rather dazed expression for a time—such freedom had not been deemed possible. However, "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," so to keep their mental faculties from becoming impaired they held a party at the Y. W. C. A. and disported themselves with childish glee. Commencement night of that year the Chorus heard from its beloved principal's lips the sad fact that when school opened in September it would be divided, and the Juniors and Seniors would come in the morning. How those children did offer thanks because they were among those favored by the gods. "Poor little Rats and Sophs," they seemed to say, "just think of having to go in the afternoon."

One's stay at High School is similar to a Governor's term of office—the first two years you are too busy getting things in working order to give much time to social activities. Our Junior year witnessed our debut into society. Do you remember Stunt Night with its Fat Lady and Snake Charmers? Wasn't the dance that followed worth all the studying of your first two years? Elated by this success, we held a picnic at the Shriners' Lodge in Glen Allen and then remained to dance that night. Wasn't it fun? About this time the Seniors gave a pageant depicting the history of the school during its fifty years of life, and, while we had nothing to do with the presentation of it, it was about our school, and we gave it the sanction of our presence.

Did this make us look forward to being Seniors? Do you dream of the fulfillment of your dearest hopes? And Seniors, in due course of time, we became. That September day has been put away in rosemary—for remembrance. Giddy with pleasure and triumph, we gave a masquerade—one of those "To the dear Seniors with love—The Class of '23 presents," etc. Our next victory was an individual one—for Ellen Douglas Gordon. She won two state-wide contests in about six months. Can any other class boast of such an intellect? Christmas brought Snow Sprites to assist Santa in his distribution of faculty presents. That night the Seniors became Juniors, and the Alumni returned to the Estate of Seniors at the never-to-be forgotten Senior-Alumni Dance. Mid-year exams came, then the opening up of the new school across the street, bringing with it the return of the full school day. Spring days followed, during which we wondered how teachers could be so heartless as to expect us to study when it was so desirable to stay outdoors doing nothing. Exams again temporarily robbed life of its rosiness, but "everything comes finally to him who waits," and the other end of our maroon and navy blue horseshoe was fastened to the City Auditorium with a diploma. It was over—our High School voyage. We can never be Seniors again, but the next best thing is to be an Alumnus. "John Marshall—First and Last."

The MARSHALLITE

February Prophecy

I SAT in a big chair at an open fire, absorbed in the "Witch Scene" in "Macbeth." Suddenly the fire place widened into a dark and gloomy cavern. In the middle there was a boiling cauldron with three witches circling around it, muttering their incantations, as they threw into it the various ingredients to brew their charm. The sight was so gruesome it actually made me shiver. Hoping not to be seen, I stood back in a secluded nook, but one of the hags, perceiving me, asked if I wished anything. At first I started to answer in the negative, but on second thought it occurred to me the weird sisters would be able to help me reveal the future of the class of '23. They stirred the contents, poured in a green fluid, and after uttering a few mystic words summoned their masters. They advanced in a line, each holding a crystal on which was shown a part of the future of our class.

On the first I saw a picture of an African wilderness. The central figure was Gretchen Bailey, our foreign missionary from Richmond, who had around her a group of swarthy savages to whom she was teaching the Gospel.

As the next approached, quite in contrast to the first, there appeared a brilliantly lighted Opera House where the world-renowned vocalist, Gladys Davis, accompanied by Doris Newton, distinguished violinist, was conducting the greatest musical event of the season.

The next look revealed a scene on Grace Street, otherwise known as the Fifth Avenue of Richmond. Floyd Adams, who never got over his love for automobiles, drove speedily down the avenue. In his haste he nearly ran over a man whom I recognized as Donald Bentley. He soon drew up in front of an ultra-modern establishment on which was this sign, "Mlle. Edyth Burruss—Most up-to-the-Minute Beauty Parlors in the Country." He conversed a few minutes with Evelyn Ancell who came from the shop, her blonde head a mass of newly-made ringlets. From the outside I caught a glimpse of Julia Howell Hughes and Ida Boyd, who were evidently important personages in the Marinello shop.

Upon another was pictured a scene in sunny, glistening Italy. A lovely villa lay in the foreground. At last Virginia Britton's dreams were realized! She was the proud possessor of not only the wonderful home but also of many millions. On the veranda she was entertaining some of our old schoolmates who were traveling abroad. I hardly recognized Helen Gasser and Virginia Peters, two of the foremost novelists of the day, but Philip Whitfield, then a renowned operatic star, accompanied by his opera-promoter, Nicholas Cooke, had not changed at all. Among the gathering were also Minnie Phaup and Bernice Parrish, the former a modern language expert, and the latter, an historian.

Again the scene shifted, and I beheld a ship gliding smoothly along, its twinkling lights casting fantastic shadows on the dark waves below. Strains of soft music were wafted out on the salty breeze. Its source was an accomplished orchestra led by Eugene Laughlin. On the deck above, Captain Willard Duke and his First Mate, Wilton Hood, studied the stars to determine the weather for the ensuing night. In the cabin Wilbur Kocen, who had lived up to every one's expectations, was seated at a radio switchboard. He was receiving messages from Joe Mizell, his co-worker on the other side. In the saloon Douglas Smith, Vashti Godsey, Broadus Adams, and Irene Amborne were "tripping the light fantastic toe."

Once again the scene changed. On a sloping green was located "Miss Morton's Select Seminary for Young Ladies." On the banks of the bubbling brook which flowed near by, Elizabeth Rowzie, who had developed a decided talent for art, was instructing her class.

My eyes opened with renewed interest as I perceived a fashionable Fifth Avenue Modiste's Shop. Margaret Robinson, its proprietress, looked on with pride as svelte Inez Carr, formerly our John Marshall fashion plate, paraded before the New York Society Leader, the haughty Clyde Rowlett.

My eager glances were then directed to the next apparition. I beheld dimly a long line of figures, and, in my eagerness to distinguish them, leaned forward in my chair, when I heard a loud crash. The half-burnt logs in the fireplace had suddenly fallen, and in a shower of sparks I saw what seemed to my dazed senses the figure of Hecate and the witches ascending the chimney. The charred logs in the fireplace alone remained of the prophetic pictures of the Class of '23.

June Prophecy

Listen, my friends, and you will see
How I, Class Prophet of '23,
Foretold the future, though I did not find
A magic mirror or a crystal kind,
A Delphic Oracle or a wise old hermit,
Or wondrous lake on some far mountain summit.
I sighed, I wept, I tore my hair,
I begged of all my friends, "Oh, tell me where
This wondrous gift I may forthwith secure,
To read the future for our maids demure."
Then suddenly there flashed across my mind
The tale of "Father Pumpkin," who did find
His luck by taking his good wife's advice.
With pad and pencil looking monstrous wise,
A pumpkin on his head, a shady nook
In the bazaar he found, and possession took;
Answered all who questioned wise and true,
And told them each and all what they should do.

I sought a pumpkin; placed half on my head
In turban fashion. Solemnly I said,
"Come now, you students of John Marshall High,
And I will read your fate as you pass by."

The first to respond is Virginia Lee,
And forthwith I a kindergarten see,
And she, Virginia, gentle, sweet, and gay,
Training the kiddies while they romp and play.
B. Caldwell comes, and quick to far Japan
My vision leaps. A missionary kind
Is preaching, healing, training the heathen mind.
Anon John Whitehurst passes; forthwith I see
By dint of my new gift of prophecy
"Patterson and Turner's Circus," being billed
By advertising agent truly skilled.
But when Ruth Yeamans comes, I see afar
A concert hall, and footlights, and a star.
In yon cathedral on a Sabbath day,
Playing with artist's touch is Alice McKay.
A math professor, solemn and severe,
Anne Richardson becomes, 'tis very clear;
While Alis Loehr to Congress makes her way,

And tells the senators she's come to stay.
For President Martha Apperson is slated—
An honour well deserved and highly rated.
But hold! here comes an ambulance.
I see excited crowds advance
To where an auto by a train was hit,
And there's a Red Cross nurse, Edith DeWitt.
Behold Ralph Swope! explorer scientific
In Popocatapetl's mines sulphuric.
Yonder pass two blushing brides together,
Virginia Cowherd one, and Isabel Smith the other.
Edythe White Bowe lives happy all her life,
A faithful and devoted little wife.
Cathryn Gwaltney boasts of husbands four,
And vows she is quite ready for one more.
Author and poet, Ellen Douglas Gordon,
Her latest novel, "Marianna Jordan."
A private secretary, Mildred Stone.
Miss St. Clair, correspondent, is well known.
In beauty parlors Elsie Weill wins fame,
While Margaret Musser decorates the same.
Arletta Estes, youngest girl of all,
To Europe sails as "Buyer" every fall.
But who is this comes dancing 'cross the stage?
Pamelia Gary; she is quite the rage.
Teacher I see: of Latin, Catherine Bell;
Of German, French, and Spanish, Miss Cottrell.
"Ye Olde Tyme Tea Shoppe," run by Earle and Unger, Invites you daily to appease your hunger.
Bill Atkins, lawyer, handles many fees,
And Newell Butler, banker, takes his ease.
Benjamin Rawles, stock broker on Wall Street,
And Calvin Coghill, beau, we'll often meet
To play a game of golf with champion Herr.
And E. Williams—specialist, I do aver!
I see a merchant and a mantua-maker,
A soldier and an undertaker,
Mechanics, preachers, and M. D.'s,
And one whose specialty is bees,
Sailors and farmers, aviators, too,
Inventors ever finding something new.
Thus on they pass. The wondrous vision fades—
Four hundred brave young men and happy maids.

YE GOOD OLE DAYS—A PLAYLET

Act I, Scene I—Cozy Room at College. Pennants, Pictures, Golf-Clubs, Tennis Rackets, Sofa Pillows and Books Strewn About Room. Blue and White Ribbons Plainly Visible in Several Places.

Anne: Can you realize that we have really left dear old J. M.? Of course, college reaches up to my highest ideals, but then I can't help but wish that I could live over my Junior year at high school.

Louise: Yes, we were all rather anxious to finish, but we certainly had some good old times, even if they didn't seem especially pleasant then.

Anne: Will you ever forget how terribly "down and out" we were when Walter Phillips left for Annapolis? Do you know what I heard the other day? Someone told me that he had been promoted, and was also in line for a higher place as soon as he graduated. Isn't that splendid? I am glad he was a classmate of ours.

Louise: He was certainly a good president. We needed someone who knew exactly what to do. What he didn't know, Miss Heinrich did.

Anne: What would we have done without her? No one could very easily fail with Miss Heinrich backing him. She saved some of our parties from falling through. I will never forget how she worked over our Sophomore masquerade.

Louise: I have never seen anyone enjoy anything as much as she did. You recall how she laughed when Johnnie Shelhorse came in dressed as a negro?

Anne: Of course I do. I don't believe I ever saw anything quite so funny.

Louise: He certainly deserved a prize for his costume. Nearly everyone went into hysterics. We didn't have anything quite as funny at our Junior party, but everybody seemed to have a good time.

Anne: Even the lofty Seniors deigned to be present that night. The punch went so fast I didn't even taste it.

Louise: Yes, and the number at our class meetings increased about fifty per cent after that.

Anne: They must have been expecting some more. Perhaps they wanted to be sure to be on the spot when it was served. At any rate, a large crowd turned out for Junior Stunt Night. I do believe Miss Harris is the most original person I ever knew. I don't see how she ever wrote that "Southern Syncopation." Everyone liked the way she handled it.

Louise: Oh, my goodness! The ten-thirty lights are out, and bell rang some time ago. Miss Bradshaw will come creeping around soon.

Anne: Turn out the light; I hear her coming now. I'm in bed, are you?

Louise: Yes, good-night.

Anne: Pleasant dreams! We'll continue our talk in the morning.

Old Father Time and Fate seemed to join hands in trying to help the poor scared little "Rats" of '21 escape the usual horror of entering John Marshall. They decreed that, the very year we entered, John Marshall should be so crowded that two sessions would have to be run instead of one. On account of this, the Juniors and Seniors, who came in the morning, didn't have a chance to annoy us with practical jokes; and the Sophs, who (we must confess) are a little fond of scaring the "Rats," seemed to be too busy thinking of other things. For the most part, we rested in peace, and did very much as we chose.

Now that we are Sophomores and feel somewhat superior ourselves, we look back upon our first year with a satisfaction and thankfulness that we "got off so easy."

Last fall we had a Masquerade Party. Nearly every costume imaginable, from clowns to dames of 1775, was represented. We all had a fine time and left highly pleased with the efforts of those in charge.

For our Christmas activities we secured the name of a family from the Associated Charities and played Santa Claus to them even to the extent of taking a carload, instead of a sleighload, of toys and Christmas things to them. This, if the truth be told, probably endangered Miss Williams' life and the lives of others because, with so many packages in the car, she could hardly drive.

We wish to make our class of '25 one of the best John Marshall has ever seen, and with the ever ready help of Miss Williams, our sponsor, we feel sure we can do so.

By Their Sayings Ye Shall Know Them

Pat Cowherd: "—And he said."
Polly Smith: "Oh, did he really?"
Marian Morton: "List to my tale of woe."
Mr. Beverly: "It is not done."
Moncure Patteson: "Oh, yas."
Betty Cottrell: "Whoisshe?"
Liz Pulliam: "W e l l —"
Miss Van Vort: "By-the-bye."
Alice Tyler: "Somebody lend me a sandwich."
Dicky Dudley: "Now, don't get funny."
Those near Mary Sumrow; NOTHING—they don't have a chance.
Miss Carrie Clarke: "Hitch your wagon to a star."
Miss Weisiger: "Is there anything else to tell about it?"
Bev Caldwell: "It's middle voice."
Alis Loehr: "I be dogged."
Margaret Musser: "Oh, really, is that so?"
Doug Gordon: "Not knowing, I feel a hesitancy in saying."
Most of Us: "I'm so hungry" (most of the time).
Mr. Hoke: "It's funny, but it's true."
Catherine Gwaltney: "I know I flunked on that test."
Julian Ford: "I'll do it tomorrow."
Mr. Waterfield: "You should see my other class."
Ben Cheatham: "Got your 'speariment?"
Virginia Lee: "You are so refreshing."
Mr. Harwood: "Please sing the hymn that you will find on the board."
Nellie Binford: "Oh, I think that is just dawling!"
Margaret Francis: "Which one?"
Manon McGinnis: "I don't know."
Miss Cross: "Don'tcha know?"
Miss Dew: "SSSSSHHHHH."
Melvin Herr: "I."
Elsie Weill: (Best not printed.)
Mr. Stubbs: "Get out of the halls."
Hiter Atkins: "Woof! Woof!"
Miss Shine: "Come on, let's go to Huyler's"—(first of the month!)
Ernest Fisher: "That's what I said."
Miss Williams: "Take pencil and paper."—(Horrors! Again!)
Mildred Stone: "I wonder."
Roy Sutton: "Steve himself."
Evelyn Ancell: "Ha ha!"
Miss Engelberg: "Why are you late?"—(Usually to Virginia Lee.)
Mr. Lux: "It's 'zimply abzurd'."

HISTORY

The "Rats" (we would like to call ourselves the Class of '26, but we do not wish to appear presumptuous) entered the portals of John Marshall, expecting to be pounced upon by wrathful Sophomores, thrown down coal-chutes, made to act as ornaments for the fountains, and any number of awful things. We were indeed surprised when the worst we received were mocking remarks, such as "Rats!"

Miss "Kitty" Vaughan gathered us under her loving wings and brightened the outlook for us considerably. Under her direction the class was organized.

It was rather discouraging to realize that, although we had a treasurer, the treasury was empty. There were many suggestions, and it was finally decided that a representative should collect dues in each home room. This did not prove very successful, but we held a "wienie roast" that did "the trick." The "dogs" barked beautifully and we all came home stuffed. (Ask Miss Vaughan how she likes to hike from Bryan Park to Richmond.) We are planning a real picnic for this spring, with a party later on.

In March, the long-looked for event happened. We were transferred from John Marshall to the new George Wythe building across the street. In this we at least have the Seniors beat, since they cannot boast of a bright, new school. It is really quite a privilege to be the first class to enter such a magnificent building.

The Class of '26 has not been heard of much as yet, but watch us grow, for "day by day, in every way we're getting better and better."

Fable of the Earnest Lad and the Hot Shot

TWO Hicks from the Tall Grass bore down upon one of our Prominent Skull Factories. Henry was really a Lad with a Purpose. He was spoken of by the Ladies' Aid as a Sweet Boy, and regarded by the Faculty as a Good Student. He couldn't swing an Educated Foot, but you should have heard Him Tear Loose on the Einstein Theory. After a Time Henry went to a Higher Cranium Foundry, known as a College. Here he acquired many Assorted Degrees and was still an Earnest Lad. He was, in a short while, appointed Associate Professor of Dead Languages in the University of Southern Rhode Island, at a salary of One Fifty Per.

After Many Years Henry secured a Raise, and was able to Pay a Small amount on the Grocer's Bill. He also became Entangled in the Meshes of Matrimony, and Raised a Small Family of a Dozen.

John was a Hot Shot. On arriving at High School he learned the Many Ways of Spoofing the Faculty. He was also good at that Little Game called "Cutting Class." His Ankle Work was a Thing of Joy to the Sweet Young Things, and no Struggle (no matter how Mean it was) would have been complete Without Him. After a Number of Years he graduated thru his Unusual Power of Longsightedness and the promptings of Sylvanus Jones, a Wise Lad, who sat in Front of Him.

On entering College be became a Professional Loafer. His Educated Ankle received further training, and all the Prom Trotters admitted He Knew His Stuff. No gathering of Jolly College Boys was a Success without John, even tho his Stock was Running Low in the Dean's Office. After remaining a Freshman for three Years, he was Shipped by a Playful Dean, because John (also playful) set fire to a Dorm while Pickled.

Ten Years later John presented his Alma Mater with a Stadium to keep down His Income Tax.

A well-known musical critic of the city said of the operetta: "It is our opinion that this performance was an exhibition of real creative ability, embracing as it does talent along several clearly defined lines. The music throughout was quite fine, especially in the selections by the chorus. Each chorus was well trained, and the shading and clearness of tone realized was not only delightful but also remarkable. There was plenty of pep, but the real music of the many catchy, lilting tunes was not lost in mere sound."

It may be said to the credit of the Patriotic Club that it is, and has been, the only charter society of John Marshall High School. The charter was secured December 1, 1917, and expires June 15, 1923.

Organized in December, 1917, with only a few members, the club rapidly grew in membership and in its scope of activities. As its name implies, it was to be a patriotic club. During the year 1918 and 1919, we contributed to the Red Cross, the Blue Cross, the Armenian Fund, Catawba Pavilion Fund, and to the War Relief Fund. We bought and gave away a one-hundred-dollar Liberty Bond and a number of War Savings Stamps. The achievement of which the club is perhaps the proudest is the adoption and maintenance of four French orphans.

During 1920-21-22, we were doing patriotic work of a peace time nature. The outstanding work of the club of '20 was the presentation of a memorial tablet to the John Marshall Alumni who fell while in the service of our country.

The members of '21 and '22 have celebrated Armistice Day, Education Week, and Woodrow Wilson Foundation Fund. At Christmas time boxes of "cheer" were sent to the soldiers in the Norfolk hospitals.

The club of '23 is the last of the line in the annals of the Patriotic Club. We have faithfully kept up the ideals of the club by doing our utmost for the school and society as a whole. We have celebrated Armistice Day, Statesmen's Day, and Education Week. At Christmas time boxes of "goodies" were sent to the soldiers in the Norfolk Hospital, and we sent food to a needy family. A facsimile copy of the Magna Charta was presented to the school.

We have spent the money in the treasury to the best advantage for the poor and needy. This year, when the club dissolves, all the money left over and above expenses will be given to the Near East Relief Fund.

To Mrs. E. M. Baker credit is due for the great success of our six years' existence. She has solved many problems for us when we were ready to give up. Special credit is due her for the manner in which she guided the society through the "double sessions." The members of the Patriotic Club heartily concur in the sentiment:

"In the golden chain of friendship
We will always consider her a link."

The F. F. F. Club of Girl Reserves reorganized in October. It was rather a difficult thing to do, as a great many of the girls were unable to come on account of their classes. We finally decided to have a campaign in order to secure all the new members possible. As each side was anxious to win, it proved very successful. At the beginning of the February term, we encountered the same problem. Another campaign was launched, and our Club began to increase. It has been doing so ever since.

We have had a very successful year in many respects. Thanksgiving we sent a large basket of fruit to St. Phillips' Hospital, and on Christmas Day we made and sent dolls to Peak's Industrial School. The girls are now collecting rummage for our sale, which we hope to hold soon. This money will go toward helping to send delegates to the Girl Reserve Conference at Sweet Briar College.

The club was first organized in 1915 through the efforts of Mr. Arthur James, then Professor of History at this school. For six successive years the club functioned successfully. During this time many future orators acquitted themselves creditably, representing the school abroad as well as at home. In 1922 the high school was reorganized, the short double session supplanting the old single session. This change was necessitated by the crowded conditions existing at that time. It was extremely difficult to have meetings with any degree of success, and so the club disbanded. In 1923, when the school returned to the old single session, the boys of the school, realizing the value of a debating club, reorganized with fifteen charter members.

The club sends annually representatives to debate for the State championship. At the time that this book goes to press the representatives of John Marshall, Hiter Atkins and Andrew Smither, are preparing for the first preliminary contest with Petersburg High. The affirmative side of the question, "Resolved: That the Principles of the Open Shop Should Prevail in American Industry," will be upheld by the White and Blue debaters. May success crown their efforts abroad as consistently as it has at home!

Under Hiter Atkins, our President, aided and advised by Miss Branch, the club has enjoyed a very successful year.

The W. W. C. was organized in the fourth period class of Public Speaking 2, second term of the year 22-23. The club met each Friday in 206. Its purpose was to give to the members practice in the use of Parliamentary Law, in the preparation of programs for different occasions, and in the art of Public Speaking.

At each meeting committees arranged attractive and interesting programs, which afforded the members valuable instruction and keen enjoyment.

The club was honored in having among its many members Thomas Keesee, famous orator and parliamentarian, and Alice McKay, noted authority on the English language and public speaking.

To you, future members of the Public Speaking Course, we would say a word in passing. You have in prospect what we are leaving behind —many delightful hours of pleasure and profit.

Discarding "Sassie Susie" and "Spark Plug" as names of our Club, we decided on the J. M. P. H. C. This club was organized by the fifth period class of Public Speaking 2, second term of the year '23.

The main purpose of the club was to promote interest in public speaking and parliamentary law.

Every Friday we held our meetings, and some very attractive programs were enjoyed.

We feel that, if we have not become orators, we have gained poise and self-confidence, along with forming better acquaintances with members of the club.

To all future members of public speaking classes we wish luck in this art, and may they find it as beneficial as we did.

The "Ancient and Honorable Order of Orators" is only one of the many public speaking classes at old John Marshall. This club meets each Friday during the third period, and is under the instructions of a most wonderful teacher—Miss Branch. With her assistance, so admirably given, it is useless to say that this class has accomplished a great deal in the art of oratory. Our purpose is to promote interest in public speaking and the use of parliamentary law, and to encourage friendship among the members.

We are fortunate enough to boast of the following members: Frances Belt, Mary Schultz, Lois Thompson, Luna Thompson, Margaret Alexander, Edith Mosmiller, Nina Trevett, Newell Neale, Marie Gathright, Pamelia Gary, Mary Parker, Alice Trevett, Mattie Hall, Gladys Vaden, Malcolm Omohundro, Jr., Cutler May, Lunsford Johnson, Wayne Grimm, Thomas Parker, Garland Shortt, William Brosky, Benjamin Sheppard, Raymond Miller, George Schraudt, Jr., Harrison Picot, Aubrey Cook, and Lawrence Gibbon.

Every Friday the program committee arranges attractive programs. These afford the members not only enjoyment but also excellent practice in public speaking.

Even after we have become proud possessors of our sheepskins, there will always linger pleasant memories of the happy hours and congenial comradeship which we derived as members of the A. H. O. O. Club.

The Senior French Society

Vice-President ..... James Gray
Secretary ..... Alice Lichtenstein
Treasurer ..... Helen Covey

Once again the French Society exerts its influence upon the students of John Marshall. Owing to the double session, it was necessary to discontinue the society, but now we are able to "carry on" with our aims and ideals.

The aims of the society are educational and social. At each meeting French only will be spoken, and it is to be hoped that French teachers will require the use of the language in the classroom. We shall have a program at each meeting which will be instructive and entertaining. Our plans include the presentation of a French play.

The French Society hopes to establish a precedent in offering, at the end of the year, a medal for excellence in French. The award will be determined by a prize examination open to all students of French.

Our hope is that our successors will carry on this work better than we have done, and that in future years we shall be able to look back with pride on a work of our own beginning.

The Junior French Society

The Junior French Society has come back to life, along with her sister organization in the upper classes. Instead of meeting after school, sessions are held twice each month during classroom time. All classes are planning to have their programs full of interesting things, and pupils are already showing signs of a dawning enthusiasm. The idea of holding the meetings during class appeals to us. Everyone is present, and sheer weight of numbers is a great aid in the injection of pep. Great things are predicted for the Junior French Society in the future.

Senior Spanish Society

STRINGS FROM A SPANISH LYRE

Why do we study Spanish?
People are heard to say.
To learn more of the country,
Which is so far away.
Its aim is to show relations
Between the United States today
With Spanish-speaking nations,
Restored from an age of decay;
Whose quaint but picturesque people,
Rich with fantastic lore,
Settled Latin-America
In the days of old Balboa.

But today ye ask the reason
Of this language being taught,
Which causes at all seasons
A battle to be fought.
'Tis to the world of the future,
America looks at this time,
And realizes the importance
Of this language so sublime.
The commercial life of our citizens,
Who journey to foreign climes,
Demands a knowledge of Spanish
To keep in step with the times.

A. B.

The Junior Spanish Society

Rah! rah! rah! The Spanish classes are once more awake after a long sleep! Just wait! They will make everyone sit up and take notice. They are organizing societies in all of the classes. They meet twice a month, and on alternate Fridays read the Spanish paper, El Eco. Once again their picture will be seen in the Annual. Many good times for the future are being planned.

Those who do not take Spanish are missing something great!

Orchestra

The Orchestra

The orchestra began its activities this year with an enthusiasm that predicted a year of success. Under the capable direction of Mr. Mercer and Mr. Donohue it has steadily expanded and improved until now with twenty-five violins, plus the flutes, clarinets, cello, saxaphone, etc., it is a close rival of the Boston Symphony! It's true the drummer sometimes comes in on the wrong beat, but, to quote him: "I make a very loud noise in order to drown the bad."

This year the orchestra has become more a part of school life than ever. Besides rendering the music for the operetta, "Swords and Scissors," and playing at commencement exercises, it has accompanied the voices in chorus practice and in the morning assemblies. Of what more could one orchestra boast?

The football team this year was one of the best that has been turned out at John Marshall in recent years. Not a game was lost out of a schedule of seven very difficult games.

John Marshall either defeated or eliminated every other team in the State, including high schools and prep schools, with the exception of Roanoke High School, which was awarded the technical championship of the State this year. Owing to the fact that John Marshall does not belong to the league, we could not secure a game with Roanoke.

Moore, our last year's coach, had only three letter men to return with him and around which he built a stellar team. Coach Moore deserves much praise for putting out such a fast aggregation, and is duly acknowledged as a proficient football coach, in that he built such a remarkable machine around such green material.

In Captain Dudley, Coach Moore found one of the best centers in the State. "Dickie" has never been cutplayed by any other center, and was signally honored by being named as center on the all-Southern Prep School team. This is one of the highest honors a football player can attain.

"Gawky" Sharp is one of the fastest men on the squad, and without him the team would be greatly handicapped. In hitting the line Gawkey is as good as any prep backfielder in the State, and he has also a rating as an all-around athlete.

"Onions" Jones may be called a field general when it comes to football, for he knows the game from start to finish. He is perhaps the fastest man on the team, and his end runs have helped to make many a touchdown.

"Shylock" Ellett plays a great game on the offense, and he is also a consistent gainer. When it comes to backing up the line, Ellett can't be beaten.

Adkins is perhaps the best find from the green material. He started at tackle, but his gains in off-tackle runs soon showed that he could carry the ball as well in the backfield. Before the end of the season he was shifted to the backfield. Adkins has done good work this year, and John Marshall is lucky in having him back next year.

"Rats" Kahn is another one of the fast men on the team. When it comes to getting the man and rescuing the Pass, "Rats" is always on the job. He is also another one of our all-around athletes, winning his monogram in all four branches of athletics last season.

Bruce Jackson had the honor of playing in every game this season. As right end Bruce was never known to miss a forward pass or to allow the opposing backfield to penetrate his side of the line.

"Lulu" Welhouse hails from Benedictine, but he has certainly proved a true blue Marshallite. His offensive work was superb, and as for his defensive work, just ask any one who saw the Newport News game whether or not anything came through his side of the line.

"Shep" Mundy "scrubbed" last year, but certainly played a regular position this year, first holding down a backfield job, then changing to tackle, where he stood out as a tower of defense. Will any member of the team ever forget that ninety-five-yard run at Newport News?

"Licker" Dixon, left end, was always anxious to get over the line, as shown in his thousand off-side plays in the McGuires game. He also played at backfield positions, and proved to be a regular star as left halfback in the Fork Union game.

"Ox" Bentley, the heavyweight of the team, held down in true form his old position of right tackle again this year. It is said that Captain Dudley wore out about three pairs of shoes in urging "Ox" to step on the necks of the opposing team.

"Red" Richardson, left tackle, truly lived up to his nickname, as he was a red-blooded football player, and showed the fight and spirit characteristic of him whenever given a chance.

"Fatty" White as right guard was a most suitable partner for Welhouse, as he, like Welhouse, never allowed opponents to penetrate the center of the line. Since football season White has discontinued having his clothes made to order, and now gets them "ready-made."

Smithie as utility man couldn't be beat, as he filled all vacancies and executed his duty with due ability.

Manager Roy Sutton deserves much praise for the quick work exhibited in getting together a schedule in such short order. He was not appointed manager until after the season had opened, and his good work justified his appointment.

Since the Annual goes to press before the baseball season is over, we shall be able only to predict the outcome of the games.

From the above scores it can be readily seen that John Marshall will be in the limelight this season. In the three games played to date, John Marshall has won all, piling up forty-seven runs to their opponents' twelve. Does this not look like a good start?

Baseball Johnny

There is a man with ruddy cheeks,
Who smiles so sweetly when he speaks;
Like two thin sticks his long legs seem;
His name is Johnny Marshall Team.

When Johnny struts himself to bat,
He can't remember where he's "at,"
But rolls his shirt sleeves up, then spits,
And, when the ball arrives, he hits.

Alas! it is but air he's struck!
O poor, poor Johnny, what bad luck!
But after 'while he strikes again,
And can he run? I'll say he can!

When just two feet from second base
Our Johnny wants to end the race,
He takes a great big stride to find
The ball has left him far behind.

But Johnny Marshall Team's a sport;
Once more upon the baseball court
He grabs his bat and strokes his chin.
Determined is he now to win.

The ball approaches nearer—near—;
There sounds a crack and then a cheer;
And lo! the baseball game is won,
For Johnny Marshall's made a run!

THE PLAYERS

Roy Sutton, captain of this season's team, was a main factor in the splendid showing that was manifested throughout the entire season by the quint. When there was a necessity for long shots, Roy would easily shoot them even from great distances from the basket.

"Gawky" Sharp, who has played on the team for the last three years, held down center position and has proved to be a true five-pointed star. His five points are: clean playing, superb passing, fast dribbling, good shooting, and clear-headedness. His sixth sense prompts him to play extra hard when a certain brown-eyed maid is eagerly watching him!

"Rats" Kahn can always be depended upon to uphold his end of the game. He, like Sharp, has played for three seasons and has also proved a bright star. Owen comes back to us next year, and we do not fear for a good team.

"Onions" Jones is in a class all by himself. His dribbling, passing, and shooting are of the calibre that would immediately win him a position on any large college or university team in the State. He also returns next year, and a great deal will be expected of him toward the making of a championship team.

"Skinny" Bell does not live up to his nick-name when it comes to playing basketball, as he plays a much bigger game than the name implies. Last year he was known as the biggest eater on the team, and he hasn't lost his appetite yet. Try "Mellon's Baby Food," "Skinny."

"Eggie" Woodward, a forward of last year's quint, played both running guard and forward this season. He is by no means slow, and will undoubtedly make a place on some big university team.

"Dickie" Dudley, who succeeded himself as last year's manager, arranged a very attractive schedule, but the new court was not completed in time, and he was handicapped in not having an available court on which to stage the games.

"Shep" Mundy proved a real athlete after "scrubbing" for a couple of years. Everyone knows how well be played football and recalls that ninety-five-yard run at Newport News. It can be truly said of him that he always played his best in basketball as well as football.

Coach Jones having been appointed to a professorship at William and Mary, we set out to find a man to fill his place, hardly expecting to do so. John Lile, star on Virginia's team for several seasons, readily consented to do so. He had at his command seven stars of last season's quint, and with the addition of several new men he soon shaped a team worthy of any school.

Few teams could boast of two better forwards than Octavia Hudson and Helen Strain. While to Helen goes the honor of the greatest number of goals, the graceful way in which Octavia shot them could not be surpassed.

Geneva Duke and Caroline Schaefer, center and side center, respectively, also played well. They both had height, skill, and speed. What more could be desired?

Last but not least are the guards, Etta Mae Jones and Katherine August. They were the smallest girls on the team, but that didn't keep them from making good. One look at their faces during a game showed you how earnestly they played.

As has been said many times, the real honor goes to those that come out every time, not knowing whether they would play or not. Paige Grubbs and Grace Todd were official substitutes. It did not matter whether put in as guard or side center, Paige played equally well. Although Grace played in few games, she showed her ability whenever she had the opportunity to play.

TRACK

Track Team

Track

In the early spring, everything seemed hopeless for the track team. But upon securing Coach Core, a former V. M. I. man, prospects for the future immediately brightened up.

Entries for the Virginia Athletic and Literary League track meet at Charlottesville have already been made. Among these are Kahn and Sharp, our only letter men. Others who are entered include Richardson, Elam, Creighton, Smith and Nuckols.

A meet with McGuire's is to be held on May 23 at the University of Richmond. This meet is looked forward to with a great deal of interest, and, since McGuire's track team has been in training much longer than John Marshall's, stiff opposition is expected.

The track schedule is not complete as yet. However, other meets are being planned, the most important of these being a meet with the William and Mary freshmen.

We consider ourselves very fortunate in having a crew at John Marshall this year, the first during its history. The Virginia Boat Club invited John Marshall to form a crew and also allowed us the use of their coach.

Coach Hecox has had many years of experience in coaching high schools and club crews. He has coached the Central High Schools of Washington since 1907 and has turned out crews that have rowed to victory over the United States Naval Academy Freshmen, St. John's Military Academy of Missouri, and many others.

Since the coach has been out of town, Joe DeMotte has been coach, manager, and captain of the Crew.

The "eight" have not been definitely chosen as yet, and everyone on the squad has high hopes of being one of the lucky "eight."

Those out for the Crew are:

Gordon Rudd	Calvin Coghill	Braxton Rountree
Sheppard Mondy	"Bus" Redwood	James Williams
Ben. Rawles	Andrew Smither	"Slick" Harner
Otis Ellet	Ed. Nuckols	William Haase
"Gawkey" Sharp	Bruce Mooring	Randolph Brooks

This year we have only one meet—that with Central High School, on June 6. Everyone on the squad is working hard and hopes to put John Marshall on the map with an undefeatable crew.

CADETS

Captain J. W. Knapp
Commandant

Battalion

Organization and reorganization of the Cadet Corps this year has somewhat crippled the Corps, but under the guidance of our capable commandant, Captain J. W. Knapp, we have come through with flying colors. The first term and part of the second were under the "double session" regime, which was a great handicap. Now we are back to the old plan of drill at recess and periods. By the end of this school year we expect to have one of the best drilled battalions in the history of the Cadet Corps.

There has been no decrease in interest in the Corps, as shown by the fact that the enrollment has increased over last year. Many "rookies" have been instructed in all branches of drill, and are now among the ranks of the old men.

The Cadet Corps turned out in full dress on Armistice Day to take part in the annual celebration. It was said by many that we competed favorably with V. M. I.

The Band is improving constantly under the instruction of Mr. Schremp. On February 22, it journeyed to Alexandria to participate in the George Washington celebration. It also accompanied the Richmond Blues to New Orleans.

The Corps lost quite a few good officers and men owing to the mid-term graduation; however, it speedily reorganized and resumed the old order of things.

There is one thing to which every cadet looks forward with pleasant anticipation: the cadet ball—one in December and one in May. The cadet balls were especially good this year. A special feature of the occasion was a figure in which the officers carrying sabers participated. An enjoyable time was had by everyone who attended.

Now that school has reorganized for the second half of the session, everyone has settled down to a schedule of hard drill. Stricter orders have been issued and enforced. A keen spirit of competition between companies is shown, in prospect of the competitive drill at William Byrd Park, the latter part of May.

Cadet instructor, Sergeant B. F. Henson, has been assigned to the Corps and has proved a very valuable aid to Captain Knapp. Sergeant Henson, through his knowledge of military regulations, has already won a place in the hearts of the Cadets.

Captain Knapp has guided the Corps through what has been probably the two most trying years in the history of the battalion. It is to him in a large measure that the credit is due. Probably if the Corps continues to grow in the future as it has in the past, we will some day have a regiment instead of a battalion.

WM. ATKINS.

Soldiers

Soldiers straight and soldierly,
  Who march uneven ways
Through forest thorn into the fight,
At frosty dawn or silent night,
Who scorn mere glory and worship right;
  Are girded on with praise.

Bright are they in mortal ken;
They are the nation's gentlemen.

Soldiers straight and soldierly
  Who march the city street
Through sultry day and blinding dust—
Not to obey because they must,
But since in human kind they trust;
  Have confidence complete.

Brighter they in mortal ken;
They are the nation's future men.

Hop Committee

Anthony Blair Britton, Chairman

T. Hutchinson Leath	Melvin Herr
Owen Kahn	Garland Sharp
Alfred Dudley	Calvin Coghill
James Williams	Thornton Fleming

To our fellow-cadets of the committee we owe the success of the cadet hops. They strove to make them successful, and all we had to do was to come and dance. The hops this year were made especially attractive by the beautiful decorations and by the figure in which the saber-carrying officers participated. The good times we enjoyed at these cadet balls will be remembered and cherished for many years. The final ball was held in the gym of the George Wythe High School. This is the first time the dances have ever been held at school. Usually they are held at the Jefferson Hotel.

Special credit is due to our commandant, Captain J. W. Knapp, Jr., who assisted the hop committee in arranging these social functions.

"Seniors may come, and Seniors may go,
But Hobby Riders go on forever."

(With apologies to Tennyson.)

The following list of Hobby Riders, from the present "crop" of Seniors and the Faculty, has been compiled from observation and personal information:

"Polly" Smith ..... Hiking
"Pat" Cowherd ..... Talking on the telephone
Gordon Rudd ..... Dancing
Mary Sumrow ..... Gossiping
Virginia Lee ..... Painting candle sticks
Bill Bentley ..... The saxaphone
Margaret Musser ..... Weddings
Herman Armstrong and "Fatty" White ..... Leaving school sick (?)
"Boo" Peasley ..... Tennis
Roy Sutton ..... Athletics
"Dougie" Gordon ..... New words
Miss Shine ..... Her "Lizzie"
Newell Butler ..... Collecting class dues
Hiter Atkins ..... His Chevrolet
"Edy" Bowe ..... Dogs
Evelyn Sanders ..... Chewing gum
Beverly Caldwell ..... Hats
Evelyn Ancell ..... Wearing other people's clothes

JOKES

"Ah! the spring is here," said the man as he opened the back of his Ingersoll.

—o—

She: "Why the black eye, Old Man?"
He: "Well, the other night Cleo and I were dancing and—oh, well, her old man is deaf and can't hear the Victrola."

—o—

"Did you see Oliver Twist, Aunty?"
"Hush, child! You know I never attend those modern dances."

—o—

We will now sing that heart rending little ballad entitled: "I've Worn Out My Shoes, So I'm On My Feet Again."

—o—

"What's your occupation?"
Peatross: "I used to be an organist."
"And why did you give it up?"
Peatross: "The monkey died."

—o—

Speaking of absent-mindedness, we heard about a fellow yesterday who was so absent-minded that he put his dirty shirt to bed and then slid down the laundry chute.

—o—

In Chemistry Class

Teacher: "Tomorrow I will take arsenic . . ." whereupon much loud applause arose from the back of the room.

—o—

Professor Mauvaise Oeff will render that little grave diggers' love ballad entitled, "I'd Move the Earth for You."

—o—

"Now I dye in peace," remarked the old lady as she pulled the cat from the vat and threw it out of the window.

3. To prevent the teeth decaying, wrench them out every morning.

Two sailors, who had been shipwrecked, were adrift on the open sea, on a raft. They were nearly exhausted. One decided to pray:

"Oh, Lord! Oh, Lord!" he began, "save us and I'll—"

"Hold on, mate!" shouted the other, "don't commit yourself. I think I see land ahead."

Discussing the relative merits of their respective families, one little boy said:

"A king tapped my grandfather on the shoulder with a sword and made him a knight."

"Oh! that's nothing," said the other. "An Indian tapped my grandfather on the head with a tomahawk and made him an angel."
